Telegraph Communication Interrupted by a Storm—Important Movements of Gen. Sherman.

[OFFICIAL.]

WAR DEPARTMENT, WASHINGTON, June 3—10 P. M.

To Maj.-Gen. Dix:

A dispatch dated yesterday at 7½ P. M., has this evening been received from Gen. SHERMAN. He reports that on Wednesday, June 1, McPHERSON moved up from Dallas to a point in front of the enemy at New Hope Church. On Thursday, June 2, SCOFIELD and HOOKER, having been shifted to the extreme left, pushed forward toward Marietta. At the same time SCOTT'S and GARRARD'S cavalry were sent to Allatoona Pass, which they reached and held possession of. These movements, the dispatch says, have secured the pass, which was considered a formidable one. Movements are reported by the dispatch as in progress which are not proper now for publication.

Nothing has been heard from Gen. GRANT since his dispatch dated at 7 o'clock yesterday morning. Telegraphic communication has been delayed by a violent storm on the Peninsula yesterday evening and last night, and cannot be reestablished before sometime to-morrow. EDWIN M. STANTON,
Secretary of War.

HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF THE POTOMAC,
IN THE FIELD, NEAR HANOVERTOWN,
Tuesday, May 31, 1864.

By one of those odd coincidences of which the history of the Virginia campaigns is so full, Gen. GRANT'S headquarters are this morning at the very point which formed the extreme right wing of the Army of the Potomac in the Peninsular campaign two years ago. HARRIS' shop, near which we now are, and four or five miles southeast of Hanover Court-house, was then occupied by the Fourth Regular Cavalry as an outpost, and it was here, just two years ago, that STUART, moving from Hanover Court-house to make his raid around McCLELLAN'S line, struck our right flank.

Draw a line five or six miles in length from the Pamunky, near Hanover Court-house, where our right now rests, almost due south across Totopotomoy Creek, three miles south of Hanovertown, and you will have our line of battle as it now stands. Five miles west of our line runs that famous stream, the "Chickahominy." Along that river, in front covering the Virginia Central Railroad, from Atlee's Station to Shady Grove, five miles north of Richmond, the rebel front is formed. Midway of the interval that divides these two points of mighty opposition, the skirmish lines of two armies meet, and to our ears the morning air brings the crackle of musketry like the spluttering of some hell cauldron, while now and then comes the boom of guns, whose reverberations are easily heard in the Capital of the rebellion. Gaines Mill and Mechanicsville are within an hour's ride: Fair Oaks you can reach in a two hours' trot. Richmond is ten miles off. 'Tis thus that history repeats itself.

The present position of this army is the result of that flank turning movement, which, commencing on Thursday last, in two days planted our corps across the Pamunky River, rendered useless the elaborate rebel defences of the South Anna, and secured us communication with York River, the Chesapeake, and the ample resources which these waters feed. Of this movement I have sent you such reports as it has been possible to send with such infrequent opportunities of communication as are afforded. I fear, however, that the reports which you can have received are at all adequate to set forth the true presentation of this great operation in strategy. Your readers would require better maps than can possibly be accessible to them, and would need to bring to them an amount of study of which you are ignorant in order to grasp its relations and its reality. Enough that it has planted this army (twenty miles nearer Richmond) that it has foiled the plans and purposes of the wily enemy, and has brought us in easy communication with a secure and perfect base. I must not, however, forbear to emphasize one point. It appears to be conceived that this movement is understood to be a following up of the enemy, who is supposed to have fallen back from his lines between the North and South Anna—a conception which does injustice to the generalship of our Commander.

It was not LEE but GRANT that took the initiative. LEE would gladly have remained in his lines along the South Anna, and would willingly have awaited battle there, but he was forced out of his cherished position, just as he was compelled to evacuate the lines of Spottsylvania, by an offensive movement threatening his communications—a movement bold in conception and masterly in execution. ("There are," says the Arch-Duke CHARLES, "battles which are already won by the mere direction of the strategic line of advance.") In a like sense it can fairly be claimed that by a couple of days' marching this army has gained a victory more substantial than a week's hard pounding could in the situation we have won; and that we are entitled so to regard this great flank movement is confirmed by the tone of mingled mortification and braggadocio in which the Richmond press treats it.

"GRANT," says the Examiner of Saturday, the 28th, "has definitely declined battle at Hanover Junction. Perhaps we should say that his army has saved him the trouble of declining. It is certain that both armies are once more moving. Two stories have lately prevailed of the direction in which GRANT is going—one account represented a large body of Yankees at Negro Foot, in the upper part of Hanover, but it has not been confirmed and is unlikely. The more probable statement is that GRANT put fortifications along his line before the junction to prevent an attack from Gen. LEE, and then returning to the northern bank of the North Anna, pushed down the Pamunky to Hanovertown, a few miles above the "Flying Tree," the point to which boats can come here. He is said to have crossed the river with the greater part of his forces. If GRANT has really landed there he may be said to have already reached the destination predicted for him since his check at Spottsylvania, the York, and the Peninsula. His next base will be the Pamunky and York, the White House and West Point. Unable to remove the obstacle on the threshold of his proposed campaign, nothing was left but to abandon it, and make his way down the valley of the Rappahannock to the head waters of the York, a monstrous circuit, to reach a point where he might have landed on the first of May, had not his head been addled by his victories over PEMBERTON and BRAGG."

This is the tone of men who sowing the prodigious labor expended in fortifying a chosen position, see themselves compelled to forfeit its advantages and seek elsewhere, and ominously nearer their capital, a new line of defence. Certainly if the Richmond journalists find any satisfaction in the monstrous circuit this army has made the to point at which it has aimed, this army is in a condition to share the sentiment. The line of march, I dictate with above extract, as taken up by this army, is quite correct. After the recrossing of the North Anna on Thursday night and Friday morning, the corps were directed on parallel roads down the course of the Pamunky to the town of Hanover, in the vicinity of which two divisions of cavalry crossed the river at 6 o'clock in the morning, and three hours afterward "RUSSELL'S" division of the Sixth Corps, after a beautiful march of 22 miles, made the passage.

The enemy, apparently not expecting the crossing to be made so far down the river, had only a cavalry force in observation at this point. The party was easily driven off, sixty being captured, and the fords were uncovered for the passage of the army, which was effected during the day. It is quite certain that it was not until this movement was fairly under way that LEE commenced the movements necessary to meet it. "GRANT," says a correspondent of one of the Richmond papers, writing on Friday, "last night commenced rapidly moving toward our right with his whole force, and corresponding movements are now on foot on our side to meet those of GRANT." The movement necessary on the part of the rebels was a simple change of front and retrograde march due south along the railroad, and ten miles would bring them to the Chickahominy. For us, on the contrary, it was necessary to give a great development to our left, so that to reach the same point which the enemy could make in a ten miles' march, it was necessary for us to march something like thirty miles—that is, we had to move in a southeasterly direction to effect the passage of the river, and then move westward, for the purpose of striking the enemy or meeting his advance. This detour, or "monstrous circuit," as the Richmond writer terms it, was necessitated by two different considerations. First, because a flank march of the kind determined upon, is one which is always somewhat hazardous in the face of a vigorous and energetic opponent; and secondly, because it was a prime desideratum to open up a water base—our communications having been abandoned when this move was initiated. This was secured yesterday, when a cavalry force was sent to White House, and to-day our water transportation is reported at that point.

The work of the past three days has been a steady pressing forward of the force from Hanovertown westward, on the lines leading to the Chickahominy, and the Virginia Central and Fredericksburgh and Richmond Railroads. The advance of GRANT'S division on Saturday developed the enemy, with the entire cavalry force and a portion of infantry, covering those roads, and brought on an engagement which, from the losses on both sides, ranks among the heaviest cavalry fights of the war. WARD'S division lost over three hundred and fifty men and forty officers, but drove the enemy, and during Sunday and yesterday our front has been steadily advancing. Yesterday (Monday, 30th) found our line stretched from the Pamunky immediately in front of Hanover Court-house, where our right rested. Along the direct road from Hanover Court-house to Richmond, our left stretched beyond Totopotomoy Creek, about ten miles from the rebel capital. The enemy showed in our front a line of battle and a skirmish line, formed by part of the corps of EWELL and HILL. During yesterday only skirmishing took place, we feeling the enemy's line. Early in the morning, CRAWFORD'S division of WARREN'S corps moved in support of Gen. GRIFFIN'S division, which was moving out the road toward Pole Green. It was directed by Gen. WARREN to support GRIFFIN'S left as he advanced. The road to Mechanicsville ran along parallel to the road upon which it was advancing, and was held firmly by the enemy's cavalry and some infantry.

CRAWFORD determined to push for this road, cross it if possible, and advance toward Mechanicsville. Accordingly, he ordered Col. HAMIN forward with the First Brigade, directing him to advance the picket line in his front, support it closely, and move for the Mechanicsville road.

It was nearly three-quarters of a mile from our left flank. HAMIN pushed in and soon found the enemy's cavalry, which he drove across the road, occupying it. Forming here, he was slowly advancing, when the enemy advanced his line of battle directly on his flank. CRAWFORD sent two regiments to his support, but the enemy attacked him upon both flanks, and finding the force both numerous he moved to the field with his whole division, the enemy having flanked HAMIN when he arrived. CRAWFORD hastily threw FRENCH'S brigade to hold the right, and advanced Col. KEOGH'S, with two regiments, to support the line on the left, but was too late, and he ordered the line to fall back to the crest of a hill. Here he extended it, and ordered the men to throw up intrenchments. Old rails, logs, and whatever was handy, were used, and a breastwork soon prepared, after which FRENCH'S brigade was thrown across a ravine on the right, and two pieces of artillery were planted on top of the ravine. Hardly were the men in position, when the rebels advanced their line of battle directly upon our line. Awaiting their coming until they were within one hundred yards, the Pennsylvania Reserves opened a very heavy fire. Thrice the rebel colors were shot down, and the last time they were not raised again. Whoever had them drawled away with them. Twice they rallied their line and advanced. Each time they were driven back, until the men laid down, when they commenced running back, and our line marched out of their works, and took 70 prisoners. Among them were six or seven officers. A very large number of the enemy was killed; among them a Colonel and five officers, and 200 dead were left lying in our front, inside of the line of skirmishers. CRAWFORD lost a considerable number of men. Brig.-Gen. BIDWELL was left on the field, as reported, killed. Col. W. H. KNOX, of the Sixth Regiment, was shot through the head. Capt. WAYNE, of the Sixth, was also wounded. Col. TYNAN is killed. Sergt. TAGGART, of the Bucktails, who captured the battle-flag of the Fifteenth Georgia at Gettysburgh, was wounded and made prisoner.

When this attack was made upon WARREN, HANCOCK was ordered at 7 o'clock last evening to make a diversion in his favor; the order was vigorously executed, and for a couple of hours a heavy cannonade was kept up on the rebel position by several batteries and six Cohorn mortars.

This morning finds our line in much the same formation as it had yesterday. The Sixth Corps, "WRIGHT'S," holds the right, then comes the Second, HANCOCK'S, then the Fifth, WARREN'S, and then the Ninth, BURNSIDE'S, which holds our left.

The only portion of our forces thus far engaged to-day is HANCOCK'S corps, from whose front I have just returned. The division of DIXON on the right and BARLOW on the centre, while I remained on the ground, advanced about six hundred yards, carrying the enemy's first line, which was held by a strong skirmish force. BIXBY captured forty prisoners, who proved to belong to BRECKINRIDGE'S command. There is hardly a doubt, however, that the position now held by the rebels in our front is but an advanced line, which they will hold as long as possible, for the purpose of gaining time to perfect their defences on the Chickahominy. On that historic line, it is now fully expected that we shall are long deliver battle.

I need not say that in the relative position of the opposing forces this is the only field fight we are likely to have outside of Richmond, and that its result must decide whether the rebel capital can be carried by a coup de main, or whether it is destined to be come the object of a Summer's siege.

A Battle Going on Thursday—Heavy Cannonading Heard at White House—The Fight of Tuesday—Revolse of Rhodes and Early.

WASHINGTON, Friday, June 3.

The steamer Keyport arrived this afternoon having left the White House at noon yesterday. Parties who came up on her state that heavy cannonading was heard there when they left, indicating that an engagement was in progress.

A cavalryman, who came in from the front to the White House, reported that the Sixth Corps was engaged, having brought it on by a rapid and sudden movement from the left to the right.

Several regiments of negro troops, doubtless a portion of Gen. BURNSIDE'S forces, were being landed at the White House when the Keyport left.

The hospital steamer Connecticut was engaged in taking on the wounded that had been brought down from the front.

WASHINGTON, Friday, June 3.

A dispatch from the Army of the Potomac, dated on Tuesday night, says:

"The day before the Fifth Corps, advancing from HAWE'S Store toward Bethesda Church, drove the enemy about two miles. At sunset, while our men were engaged in digging rifle pits, RICKETTS and EARLY'S divisions made an attack on WARREN'S right flank, causing him to fall back from his first line. The enemy then advanced and charged the second line, KEOUGH'S brigade of heavy artillery was posted there and opened a heavy fire in conjunction with batteries on both flanks, which nearly demolished the rebel column of attack. The enemy fell back in terrible disorder, and left their dead and wounded behind them on the field."

Not Very Large News—A Successful Skirmish—Fifty Prisoners Captured.

WASHINGTON, Friday, June 3.

A dispatch from the Army of the Potomac, dated 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, says: This morning Gen. BURNSIDE'S division advanced again and a breastwork held by BRECKINRIDGE'S corps on the south side of Totopotomoy Creek, on a high eminence, a very strong position, and one which might have been easily held against a vastly superior force. The enemy, after firing a round or two, and seeing a determination to take the place, evacuated and retreated to the woods.

Our loss was about twenty-five. We took about fifty prisoners, mostly belonging to BRECKINRIDGE'S command, some of whom said they were in the valley in the fight with Gen. SIGEL, but did not have to fight as stubbornly as they did here.

Capt. ROWE, of the Sixteenth Massachusetts, and Adjt. JACKSON, Second New-York, were among the wounded, this morning—the latter having had his leg amputated.

The attempt made to turn our left last night, and to cut us off from the White House and new base of supplies, was defeated, with considerable loss on both sides.

FROM FORTRESS MONROE.

Repulse of the Rebels by Gen. Butler—Reported Capture of Fitzhugh Lee and 500 Rebel Cavalry.

FORTRESS MONROE, Thursday, June 2.
Via BALTIMORE, Friday, June 3.

The steamer John A. Warner, from Bermuda Hundred at 4 o'clock last evening, has arrived. At 7 o'clock yesterday morning (1st) the enemy attacked Gen. BURNS'S left wing, and a spirited fight with musketry and artillery was kept up until 9 o'clock, when the enemy were again repulsed. Thirty rebel soldiers came into our lines yesterday morning and surrendered. Our loss was very slight. The enemy's loss has not been ascertained.

The steamer George Washington, from the White House at 7 o'clock this morning, has arrived here.

It is reported that Gen. FITZHUGH LEE, and 500 of his command (cavalry) were captured last night while attempting to make a raid in the direction of the White House. Gen. BURNS forced upon the capture.

[Gen. GRANT'S official dispatches dated June 3, 7 A. M., make no mention of this capture, and the report may therefore be regarded as unfounded. EDS. TIMES.]

There is no later news from Gen. GRANT'S army.

A prize steamer, name not ascertained, arrived in Hampton Roads this evening.

Wounded from Bermuda Hundred.

FORTRESS MONROE, Thursday, June 2.

The following wounded men arrived from Bermuda Hundred, yesterday, and were admitted into the McClellan Hospital:

THE WAR ON THE MISSISSIPPI.

Engagement at Gaines' Landing—The Rebels Drive Off—The Steamer Lebanon Burned—Bold Rebel Movements in Arkansas, Etc.

MEMPHIS, Tuesday, May 31.

The tin-clads Marmora, Juliet, and Prairie Bird, recently engaged the rebel batteries at Gaines' Landing, and succeeded in driving them away. The Prairie Bird was struck thirty times, and the Marmion Brigade boat Delta had her donkey engine shot overboard, and the engineer killed.

MARMADUKE, who is reported to be in command of the rebels, had taken twelve pieces of artillery.

He captured and burned the steamer Lebanon, and carried the crew and passengers off as prisoners.

The boats from the White River report the rebels to be thick, but the boats are not molested.

A heavy force of rebels is reported to be within twenty-five miles of Duval's Bluff marching on that place. They are supposed to number 15,000.

The rebel Gen. SHELBY captured Dardanelle last Monday, taking 200 prisoners. After the capture he crossed the Arkansas River, and it was supposed that he intended to strike the Little Rock Railroad.

Guerillas are represented as unusually active in Arkansas.

It appears to be the intention of the rebels to force the Union troops to evacuate all the State except Little Rock and Helena.

Jacksonport and Batesville have been evacuated by our forces.

Eight Steamers Burned at New-Orleans, Etc.

CAIRO, Thursday, June 2.

The steamer Pauline Carroll, from New-Orleans 27th ult., has arrived.

The news is unimportant.

The officers report that when some distance from the city, they noticed a large light, supposed to be at New-Orleans. On arriving at Baton Rouge, they learned that a dispatch had been received stating that eight steamboats had been burned at New-Orleans. No particulars had reached Baton Rouge.

Favorable news from New-York had given an upward tendency to the New-Orleans cotton market; the supply was light and there was not much doing. Sugar was dull and declining, with small sales of fair to good at 11c. @12c., and fully fair at 12c. Nothing doing in molasses, and quotations nominal.

The Eighteenth Indiana Volunteers, Col. WAINSWRIGHT, came up on the Carroll from Baton Rouge, en route home on furlough.

The portion of the Eighteenth Illinois which has not reenlisted, has arrived from Little Rock, en route to Springfield, to be mustered out of the service by order of Gen. CANBY.

Capt. John D. KEENER, Acting Quartermaster, has been assigned to duty as General Superintendent of the Land and Water Transportation, within the Division of West Mississippi. The officers and owners of all steamboats plying on the Mississippi River and its tributaries south of Cairo, are ordered to report to him at headquarters, which is at Natchez, and give the names of their boats and barges of every description, their tonnage owners, and the trade in which they are engaged.

A Convention of Unconditional Unionists to elect delegates to the Baltimore Convention, from the Western District of Tennessee, assembled at Memphis on the 30th ult., and resolutions were adopted indorsing the Administration, and pledging themselves to support ABRAHAM LINCOLN for President, and ANDY JOHNSON for Vice-President.

FIRE AT MOUND CITY, MO.

Loss Half a Million of Dollars.

MOUND CITY, Wednesday, June 1.

A large, valuable naval wharf-boat was burned at 8 o'clock this evening. The fire was first discovered in the paint and oil room, supposed to have originated from spontaneous combustion. The fire was not discovered until it had spread beyond control. The progress of the flames was so rapid that nothing could be saved. Many persons on board narrowly escaped with life; the smoke and flames rendered egress by stairway impossible; many escaped by roof. No lives were known to have been lost. Paymaster Reed, of the United States Navy, was seriously burned, and some near being suffocated while attempting to save his funds and papers. The entire loss is said to be one-half million of dollars or more, consisting principally of naval stores, including Paymaster DAVIS' safe, containing $200,000, and another $11,000. There was no ordnance stores or provisions on board.

From California.

SAN FRANCISCO, Wednesday, June 1.

Another large Christian Commission meeting was held last night.

There was a large gathering of artists at Oakland yesterday, on the occasion of the graduation of the first class of the College of California. Governor STANFORD, Dr. BURROWS and Gen. WRIGHT were present and spoke. A strong Union feeling prevailed.

A large quantity of confiscated Chinese opium, which was smuggled into this port, is to be sold by the United States Marshal.

Stock of all kinds much depressed. General trade dull.

The ship Horizon is now discharging four 13-inch and two 10-inch guns for harbor defence.

There have been no arrivals or departures of note.

THE NEW-YORK YACHT CLUB

Fifteenth Annual Regatta.

The day could hardly have been more pleasant, or the wind more favorable, for the Fifteenth Annual Regatta of the New-York Yacht Club, which took place yesterday. At an early hour the pier at the foot of Twenty-third-street, North River, was thronged by people anxiously awaiting the arrival of the steamers which were to accompany the yachts "down the river." Before 10 o'clock, the hour designated for the departure of the fleet, the steamer Metamora was crowded by members of the club, and their lady friends, and shortly after that hour the boat swung into the stream, leaving the pier to await the arrival of the fleet. This pleasant entertainment of gentlemen was fully appreciated by the Reportorial Corps, and constituted a special dispensation in their favor—the number on board the Metamora quite as agreeable, and possibly as select as those on board the Mariners.

At 10½ A. M., the yachts entered for the regatta sailed from the flag-boat abreast the Club House at Hoboken, in the order:

The terms "second class" and "first class" are arbitrary, and refer to the comparative sizes of the vessels.

The "measurement" of the vessels refers to the area on the water-line, and the "allowance" named is deducted from the time of the trip.

The "No." on the mast-head indicates the order of placing the vessels side by side.

The "area" is accounted for in the explanation of measurement.

The statement of minutes and seconds in the last column defines the aggregate difference of time which must be allowed.

The course, according to the rules of the club, determined from the flag-boat, stationed off the Battery, to the flag-boat off Robin's Reef Light; thence easterly to a flag-boat off Owl's Head, Long Island, passing it to the north and east; thence around the buoy of the Southwest Spit, passing it from the north and east.

Returning, they first passed the flag-boat moored off Owl's Head, Long Island, to the south and east; thence to the flag-boat stationed off Robin's Reef Light, to the south and west; thence to a flag-boat off Governor's Island, to the south and east; thence to the flag-boat abreast of the Club-house, Hoboken, passing it to the westward.

In going and returning, all the buoys on the west bank, viz.: Nos. 11, 13 and 15, were passed to the eastward.

When the signal for the departure was given the wind was very light and there was a prospect of a calm. Before, however, the sloops first named had reached a point nearly opposite the Battery, a breeze came up and all hands of a fleet day were compelled. The race was for a time exciting and close, the contest between the Annie, the Richmond, and the Harrangasett being at first exceedingly close, but on the home stretch the question as to which boat would win the prize was settled in favor of the Annie, which entered to fairly fly away from her competitors.

The following is the official report of the time made by the different vessels entered for the race:

GOING DOWN.

Annie passed buoy at Southwest Spit, 1.32.20; Richmond, 1.20; White Wing, 1.36.10; Nettie, 1.40.25; Geraldine, 1.45.00; Magic, 1.16.31; Julia, 1.34.24; Juniata, 2.08.24.

RETURN.

Annie, 3.30.20; Magic, 4.07.01; Harrangasett, 4.11.28; Richmond, 4.11.56; Nettie, 4.12.20; White Wing, 4.12.28; Julia, 4.17.54; Geraldine, 4.18.15; Juniata, 4.26.

During the race a large number of vessels not entered accompanied the yachts going down and returning, many of which were from the Brooklyn Club. On board the Nora, a fine collation was served at 1 o'clock. Mr. C. E. HAWKES, Jr., presided, and the entertainment was gotten up under the able management of Mr. C. H. Jones.

The Annie, being the first vessel to round the flag-boat on the home stretch, was heartily welcomed by the spectators of the race.

The following are the present officers of the New-York Yacht Club:

George, the Count Jeannes, Seeketh a Value for His Wounded Honor.

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

Before Judge Cardozo.

George, the Count Jeannes vs. John Cluseny.—The plaintiff in this case brings an action against the editor and proprietor of the New-York Leader for an alleged libelous and defamatory article published in that paper against his good name and character. The article was headed "Count, No-account," and insinuated that the world-renowned author, poet and artist, George, the Count Jeannes, is only a Count by the courtesy of those who have a mind to call him so. The subject-matter appears in extenso in this action and claims the sum of $25,000, as the exact amount of damages to his wounded honor.

A motion was made yesterday, on the part of the defendant, to compel the plaintiff to file security for his costs, and the motion was supported by an affidavit of Jean Chaves, in which he set forth that Gaston Jeans, by which name he calls the noble Count, was a non-resident, and, moreover, was not pecuniarily responsible. In answer to this, the Count related how he lived in a big hotel in this City and paid his bills too, which he stated for the information of the Court, with the numbers attached.

His Honor declined to receive the affidavit, and said that he would reserve his decision upon the question of security. The Count placed his hand upon his noble head, and he parted to "his hotel."

THE PRIVATEER FLORIDA AT BERMUDA.—The Bermuda Gazette of the 17th ult. thus notices the arrival of the privateer Florida at Hamilton:

"The fire-famed Florida paid us another visit on Thursday last, this time only a flying one, as she did not enter St. George's harbor at all, but remaining for the few hours, three, we believe, of her stay, in Five Fathom Hole. She merely touched here in order to pick up late newspapers and letters for her officers, &c., from sweethearts and wives—her officers and crew having been without any news for a month and more. Her habiliments to describe of any particular interest. She seems having overhauled a large number of Federal vessels, but as they had all avoided themselves of the usual precaution, and in effect changed their flag, she was obliged to let them go."

The Young Men's Christian Association.

BOSTON, Friday, June 3.

The convention of the Young Men's Christian Association for the United States and Canada to-day took an excursion in the harbor, visited Fort Independence and the Farm School, and, by invitation of the Mayor, the city institutions on Deer Island, where they were formally received by the CITY GOVERNMENT. A collation was furnished, addresses of welcome were made, and Gaston E. Bonner, President of the Christian Commission, responded for that institution. The meetings of the convention have been very fully attended, and large delegations from abroad were present.

From Our Own Correspondent.

San Francisco, Tuesday, May 3, 1864.

The Constitution came in very promptly to time day before yesterday morning, and landed all of her passengers in good order and condition, and nothing came out old friend, the Indian chief Sacramento. I went down from there at the Occidental, and found the old fellow laying off in the chair, smoking a cigar, and receiving the congratulations of his friends on his safe return. He had got up splendidly, wearing the full uniform of a General, and his breast blazing with diamonds and jewels of the order, not of St. George, but "stunning." The piece of jewelry that attracted my attention, locked like a starfish, and on investigation proved to be the joint donation of the IRATABA, E. W. BOSS, FRANK STEVENS and Dr. QUACKENBOSS. Of this piece of jewelry IRATABA is very proud, and gave me a description of its presentation and speech by Dr. QUACKENBOSS. IRATABA says the Doctor "make very good Injun medicine-man by and by," and I think he seriously contemplates offering him a position on his staff as High-Tah, Big Medicine. I advise the Doctor to accept, for down in IRATABA's country is in the easiest thing in the world to live without work; the squaws do all that, and all the Doctor need do would be to reduce his habiliments to the habits and fashions of the country, i. e., a black cow-tail without any body, or an old coffee-sack tied around the waist, then grease himself all over so that the flies and skeeters would slip up and not be able to bite. This costume, besides being in the height of fashion down there, is both cheap and comfortable, considering the climate. As to the living, a little course of beans and grasshoppers would be admirable.

The only diseases incident to the country are sudden loss of the hair and "blind staggers," the former being occasioned by a little playful pistoling with the scalping-knife, and the latter by very bad whisky, which it would be a shame to classify as spirituous liquors under the new tariff, as it has already paid a heavy duty under the head of strychnine and other "cold pizen." The cure for the loss of hair is to clap a covering of mud, sow a little grass-seed, and a crop soon follows, which only requires renewing semi-occasionally. Mud plasters are a prominent feature of the practice of the faculty down that way, and is adopted as a protection against fleas, musquitoes, &c., by the poorer classes who cannot afford "goose grease." It will not be necessary for the doctor to take any of his cases of fine instruments or medical works. A hammock, bottle of oil, a pipe and tobacco and a lancet to bleed with in case of "ساتر Staggers," as before mentioned, is all that is necessary. I dwell particularly upon the latter disease, as I remember seeing him treating a case once upon a time in Broadway. If he has forgotten the circumstance let him refer to E. W. B. for particulars. But to return to IRATABA, who has returned to us. His presence is very apropos, for his constituents down below have been kicking up a nice row and bobbery in consequence of his prolonged absence, and are getting decidedly ugly. They have no clear idea of his whereabouts, and have heard that he was last seen in a big wigwam in a place called New-York, surrounded by a body of men termed "City Fathers," whose general habits were of a nature to "lay out" any ordinary Injun in a short space of time. This tribe held a council and passed sundry resolutions on reception of this news, from which I quote the substance of the "resolves."

1. That IRATABA, in going away on a short "furlough," and continuing it on his own hook, without applying to "proper authority" for an extension, was guilty of a breach of Mojave Military Regulations, (last series, revised, see paragraph 400,) and charges would be preferred.

2. That he could see almost everything any decent Injun ought to see, in San Francisco, and meet with bad company enough to corrupt the morals of any Injun; but to go further, and are worse, and without regard to his own reputation and that of his tribe, to voluntarily associate with the City Government of New-York, was evidence of the corrupting influences of white society, that excited their liveliest apprehensions for his future well-behaving.

3. In encasing himself in the uniform of a Brigadier-General, he had brought reproach upon the name of Mojave, for it argued that he considered he had a mighty "good thing"—as being palpable evidence of his never having done anything, or being expected to do anything again, except smoke cigars, talk politics and draw his pay.

4. If he is coming back at all, he had better be about it or he went have the chance.

5. Unanimously resolved, that whatever he has "collected" on this expedition, or inside, shall be common property, and that the tobacco bag shall be common stock for everybody's pipe.

Lastly—That IRATABA shall divest himself of his General's uniform and return to the usages and fashions of good society, and take to his coon-skin, short jacket, and grasshopper diet.

I asked IRATABA what he thought of New-York? He grunted and remarked, "Mighty big place; sewer stinck; people muchee; 5—gh cold." When I asked how they treated him, he said, "Fuss-rate; city men get me drunk twice; we all drunk. Plenty eat; eat corn; eat pig; eat plenty. No grasshoppers." He evidently longs for a little of his old luxury. He appointed largely on the Metropolitan and the LELAND, and tried to individualize them, and I recognized WALKER at once by his description. "Big fellow; hair no good for scalp,"—meaning that it was too short to get hold of—very convenient if a man intended to continue in the society of IRATABA where he is going.

By the time this reaches you the old Injun will be among his people again, and it is time he was there, for they are getting very suspicious that he has been unfairly dealt with, and never will there the "dark" of his countenance among them again. His arrival will be timely, for the spirit of insubordination and distrust of the whites is merging into an Indian war; that would be serious, for the old man's constituents are numerous and warlike. I told him his people were kicking up a "bobbery." He said, "Me go soon; I fix em." "I have no doubt the method of fixing them" will settle the case permanently of any gentleman savage who considers himself "one of the people whose voice shall be heard." His voice would only be heard just once and that would be a "squeak" and good bye to Mr. Injun. WALKER don't bother his head with juries and lawyers; he settles his little legal matters himself, and settles the litigants with the case.

The ship Golden Star, from Boston, recently arrived, bids fair to give the legal fraternity something to do, and the great question of whether saltpetre will explode, will be forgotten in that of "Is a ship responsible for the acts, deeds and doings of cockroaches?" It is a curious question for those industrious little insects have eaten up, chewed up, and ruined, over $30,000 worth of the ship's stores. BARNES & WOOD lost $1,000 worth of boots and shoes eaten up; MATS WHEELWRIGHT contributed in the way of raisins several hundred horse collars, harness, &c. Another party had the leather covering of a piano completely eaten, and the leathers on the hammers, in fact everything and anything in the leather way they consumed. The query is, who is responsible, or whether anybody is. The agents have telegraphed for instructions.

I believe a ship is not held responsible for damage by rats if she has a cat; by the same rule any damage by pigs on deck would be canceled by a dog on board.

But how about cockroaches? If the Captain had invested a few dollars in red wafers he would have done a larger business than Solomon, and slaughtered his millions. Cockroaches eat wafers greedily, and they are consequently laid out cold, ready to be converted into "East India Sauce," or anything else. I think red wafers contain sulphuret of mercury—the effect on cockroaches bears out my ideas of the general effect on poor humanity, in these days under the name of "mild calomel practice."

Mining stocks have taken a tumble within the last few days, consequent upon the bill before Congress to tax the gross product of the mines 5 per cent. The tax is virtually a complete absorption of all the product available for dividends in small mines, and is a heavy drag on the larger ones. No one would object to 5 per cent., or even 10 per cent. on net profits—but 5 per cent. on gross product is pretty steep, and under the cloud stocks have dropped. Ophir is selling at $1,100, a decline of $300 per foot within a few days. Gould & Curry fell from $4,500 to $4,000 per foot. Many other stocks have gone down for the moment. It is hoped, however, that Congress will modify the tax to a rate that will not destroy the goose that lays the golden egg.

I promised in my last to give you a list of the best dividend-paying mines, but it is difficult to say where the panic will stop on the tax question. As a general thing what are termed the "Gold Hill Mines" are most productive. They have paid largely, and continue to pay their owners large incomes. Recently several of the individual claims have been consolidated, and incorporated into joint stock companies. The principal one is called the "Empire Mill and Mining Company;" capital stock, $1,040,000, in shares of eight hundred and odd dollars. This stock is now selling at over fifty per cent. above par value, and pays a monthly dividend of $40 per share—in gold, of course. It sells here at about $1,100 per share, and pays nearly four per cent. per month dividend. The property of the company consists of two large quartz mills and reduction works, a tract of several acres of woodland, teams, tools, buildings, offices, &c., and their mine, consisting of seventy-five feet front of vein, running back several hundred feet. The Gold Hill Mines are a series of veins more or less valuable, parallel, which are worked through tunnels and shafts, the ore being hoisted by steam-power, delivering several hundred tons upon the surface per day, varying in quality from $40 to $150 per ton. This rock is hurled to the mills, crushed, amalgamated, retorted, and shipped to San Francisco, where it is run into bars, assayed, stamped, and sold for foreign remittance. The dividends are declared from the proceeds, once each month. The affairs of this company are most economically and admirably managed, and bid fair to pay handsome dividends for a long time. They can see a year's work before them now. Several adjoining claims are being consolidated, and their stock will soon be issued, and will pay as largely as the Empire. One of the claims to be included pays its present owners a dividend of $1,200 per foot per month. The price of these claims varies from $5,000 to $10,000 per foot. There are two of the number that cannot be had at even the latter figure. I do not advocate investments in any mine, and these are facts merely. The Gould & Curry Mine continues to look well, produce and pay well. The Ophir is not what may be termed in a healthy state. The great trouble is the management, which has been afflicted with chronic stupidity and bad judgment, extravagant salaries and injudicious outlays. PARROTT, the Superintendent, is a very scientific man, so said, and doubtless he is fully competent—but then he is paid a salary of $30,000 per annum, and other officers in proportion. The mine under economical and judicious management would be, as it always has been, a good mine. Its dividends have been suspended temporarily, I think, consequent upon the main shaft filling with water, and there being no large pump ready, as there should have been. They knew they must strike water soon, but made no preparation for it, and now when it bursts in there is no pump. It has to be ordered, that takes time, all interim no good ore can be got out, and, of course, no dividend. The directors of the Ophir are deserving of a certificate of smartness, in the form and shape of IRATABA's frying-pan breastplate. The Gould & Curry is better managed, and pays its usual dividend of $125 per foot for the last month, declared yesterday, which is a little over 3 per cent. per month on price to-day. The "Savage" declared a dividend of $50 per foot yesterday also, selling at $4,200 per foot.

The Rev. Dr. BELLOWS is among us. He arrived last steamer, and was immediately taken in hand—captured, like Bunsby, and walked off to some private house, I think. He preached the next day (Sunday) to a crowded house. I saw him in a carriage to-day, being shown the lions by the Rev. Dr. ANDERSON, who was driving. The carriage contained Mr. and Miss BELLOWS, also—a phaeton and very respectable "turn out" improvised from some adjacent livery stable, I know, for I have seen a much gayer party in the same, coming in over the road, who never seemed in the least interested in the architecture of the churches they passed. I was watching them from my office window—(the Reverends I mean, of course)—and was perfectly sure for a moment that the Doctor would blossom be a speedy case for the Sanitary Commission, for the Rev. Mr. ANDERSON did not exhibit that skill in the management of his team that the value of his load required. He nearly run into a North Beach car, then plumped his horses' heads into a vegetable cart, then luffed up into an old lady crossing the street, then got stern-way on, and I was expecting a dreadful spilling of great and good men when a lull occurred, and they went on, how far unscathed I know not, but I shall look in the list of casualties tomorrow for the two divines. I can recommend to those two ladies many better young men drivers. What they don't know about driving is not worth mentioning—what they know about the Scriptures would be, if you only knew what it was—but divines are more in place in the pulpit than on the box driving divinities, and I shall protest against Mr. ANDERSON handling the ribbons. He is not safe.

OUR NAVAL VESSELS.

The Ships We Are Building—Failures of the Navy Department—Prospects of Future Failures.

New-York, Saturday, May 28, 1864.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

I observe from the Washington telegrams that the Naval Committee of the House is now occupied in hearing testimony to establish that his new theory is true, upon which the United States has already built a vast number of worthless ships of war, and upon which, notwithstanding the failures of those already built, the Navy Department is building as many more as the machinery and labor of the country can produce. Of course, any number of the appointees of the Engineer-in-Chief, or of the dependants upon the department can be ordered up to swear that in their opinion the whole world is in error, and only the present Engineer-in-Chief of the Navy understands the laws of steam, and how to apply them; but when a test is proposed—an actual trial of one of the ships of our running over a measured distance—that cannot be got, although I have bagged Congress and the Secretary to order one of these new sleds to be run from light-ship to light-ship, and have her performances ascertained. If that were done the impudent pretence that these new vessels are worth as much as the raw material out of which they are built, would be exposed, and we might yet go back to the old system, upon which our Navy once was as good as the navies of Europe, and upon which they are all built; and we might still, with our remaining resources, have some ships built which would at least equal those of other nations.

In the absence of that test, however, which I see no hope of procuring so long as the present Assistant Secretary of the Navy controls the Secretary himself and the department, and is able to make Congress suppose that any interference with him and the Engineer-in-Chief in their plans, is giving aid to the enemy, I see the committee and Congress, I see the President himself, for whose integrity, patriotism, and intelligence I have the highest respect, to look at the simple fact of the performances of these new vessels, as recorded in their log books in the Navy Department, and there see for themselves how utterly worthless these ships are. There is nothing so important to us the coming now on this question. See the rebel fleet building in France, guaranteed to go 13 knots an hour! See the Alabama and Florida defy our navy and drive our commerce off the ocean. Contemplate where we will be, as a nation, if we are drawn into a war with England or France, who can send a fleet of ships which can go 13 or 15 knots an hour, while our cannot go ten! Are not these considerations enough to make you pause, and at least find out, by one actual trial, whether these things are so or not? Is it any answer to say that in a time of war the Government ought not to be questioned?

But read the log of the Lackawanna, one of this new fleet, and one of the best—although they are all made from the same drawings. I caused it to be sent for by the Committee of Naval Affairs, when I was a witness, and I copied it. It is the only continuous run on the book—the rest of the service recorded being on blockade; and it gives the facts of the voyage from Fortress Monroe to Pensacola:

* Engines stopped for repairs.

During all this time, the log-book shows the weather fair and without wind. The ship ran 235 hours, and made 1,504 miles; or, seven and one-tenth knots an hour, burning 2,064 pounds of coal an hour, or more than a net ton; while, at the same time, the engine used a gallon of oil an hour. The amount of coal burned was the full steaming quantity, as Mr. ISHERWOOD testified before the Board of Engineers, pp. 25, thus: "Ordinary full steaming would require 28 tons of coal a day; could not do with less than 13 days of coal; this gives 280 tons as the quantity of coal which must be carried, &c." The horse-power needed to drive this vessel 7 knots an hour, is, according to Mr. ISHERWOOD, who is very accurate, and an authority, one hundred and ninety-seven. I should allow about 240, beyond which, no one would go. If ISHERWOOD is right, these new vessels require ten pounds of coal an hour horse-power; and no calculation would fix it at less than eight pounds; while the old navy, and the navies of the world, get a horse-power for about four and a half pounds an hour.

The Brooklyn, a ship-of-war, about one-third larger than the Lackawanna, and her class, goes more than nine knots at sea, or 2,100 pounds an hour, and makes a horse-power for four and six-tenths pounds an hour; for which statement I have Mr. ISHERWOOD's book, issued by authority of the Navy Department, pp. 230. Her engines have the usual Independent out off, employed by the navies of the world, and by our old navy, and such as I have been urging the department to use.

With higher rates of expansion, however, still better results are produced, thus proving in practice beyond a doubt the truth of these great laws, established by the leading scientific minds of the world, but denied by the present Navy Department, at the cost of a ruined navy. The steamship Peh-Kien, the vital parts of whose machinery I built for Mr. FOSSE, is a ship of 2,000 tons, or one-quarter larger than these sloops-of-war. She ran from New-York to Hong Kong, a distance of 16,000 miles, at the rate of more than eleven and a half knots an hour, on twenty-seven tons of coal a day. Since then she has run from Shanghai to Hong Kong, which by the tables of the Bureau of Navigation is 960 knots, in 84 eight hours, having, as the charts show, a current in her favor of about half a knot—which is an average speed of about eleven knots an hour, on a ton and a half of coal an hour. The following is a quotation from a letter written by Mr. HAWKSHURST, her engineer, to Mr. INGERSOLL, of this city, whose fresh-water apparatus is used on the ship, which letter is my authority for the last statement. It is dated Feb. 28, 1864, and states: "We are running from Hong Kong, to Shanghai, distance about 900 miles. We have done it with your instrument, burning one and a half tons of coal an hour, in 24-inch boilers. We never blow our boilers from one end of the route to the other, neither do we make any scale." The last statement shows that the boilers are supplied with fresh water; whereas, in the United States vessels, although they pay an immense patent fee to one of Mr. HASWELL's party for a fresh water condenser, the boilers are salt in a few hours, and the log-book of the Lackawanna shows that on the run above recorded, the salt in her boilers was at the maximum allowed in any service, and that the first thing done when the ship stopped at Pensacola was to "scale the crown sheets"—that is, to chisel off the deposits of salt and lime which the worthless foul water apparatus had permitted to accumulate. Mr. FOSSE, who owns the Peh-Kien, and who recently went in her from China to Japan, writes that she goes at sea fifteen knots an hour in windward, and sometimes sixteen; and her capacity to burn coal is limited to a ton and a half an hour. This is the ship which has been made the subject of ridicule attempted on me, on account of her small boilers, and the Army and Navy Journal, (Jan. 30, '64,) which appears to be employed by the Navy Department, makes this statement about the Peh-Kien:

"Unfortunately it has been found that when the 'cut-off' was acting on so very low, and the engine was only using steam in the temperate, and only had very little steam used, and very little coal burned, but the vessel was moving at a most reflectingly low rate of speed—so slow as to be impracticable for any commercial purpose; and the conjecture, after so well trying to defend the facts, are compelled to admit that Wendell with the usual capacity of boilers to generate enough water to produce the required speed."

Of course this is entirely untrue, and the Peh-Kien, whose small boilers were the subject of ridicule of the whole gang of ignoramuses who bask in the free sunshine of the Navy Department favor, has run nine hundred miles quicker than it ever ran down to any steamer in the world, on an amount of coal which would not carry the Lackawanna nine miles an hour. Her horse-power could only the pounds and ounces of coal an hour.

These are simple facts. I did not make them, and they are on record. My part of the performance was done by observing the laws of nature, which establish that there is power in expanding steam; the Navy Department's part was done by cutting down navy; and as I wrote to Mr. WELLES in 1862, I now repeat:

"The laws of nature, Mr. Secretary, are unlike the laws of men; they enforce themselves, and punish disobedience inexorably. They cannot be punished out of their course by pamphlets, nor bought off by money, nor driven off by force. The United States, like all private persons, must submit to them; and the sooner that truth is learned in your engineering bureau, the sooner the country will be relieved from the disgrace of engaging in a conflict with the eternal principles upon which the existence of the universe depends, and of being ridiculously beaten by inflexible but certain power."

When I began this effort to correct these immense blunders I knew what I should suffer. I wrote to you in 1862:

"Of course, Mr. Editor, I know that in making this exposure I shall incur the enmity of a class interested in maintaining the present order of things. I have no other interest in it than to serve my country, if possible, by pointing out the true path to follow in this particular branch of the service; and knowing, as I do, the miserable results which have followed from the present system, I could not conscientiously allow this occasion to pass without trying at least to do much as I have said."

Since then I have realized it all. No attempt has been made to refute my facts, for they cannot be refuted; but the whole power of the department has been spent in endeavoring to discredit the personality, as if that would change failure into success. Capt. FOX, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, disgraced the office he holds by soliciting a New-York paper to publish a gross, false, personal libel on me, and was refused, although the paper was offered him for any answer he might choose to make to my arguments or my facts, but he had none. Mr. CHANDLER, of the Senate, who is supposed to be a sincere and truthful man, (and I know nothing to the contrary,) has been so far misled as to offer another false and libelous attack on me personally in the Washington editor of a New-York paper for publication, and it was refused. Capt. FOX again appearing to remonstrate was not the interference which prevented its publication. The President, Senators and members have been assured by Capt. FOX and Mr. ISHERWOOD that the object of my attacks was to introduce the Sickels cut-off on the naval ships, and revenge because they would not prevent it; while they knew that I, from the beginning, had earnestly written, and I so swore before the committee, that if I had all power I could not do it, (although in proper hands it would be great advantage,) and they know that I have urged only the use of the cut-off of the Corliss of England, and of the United States also, before this party took it out of our ships and thereby ruined them—a machine which is public property, and on which we patent has existed for thirty years.

I have endured all this and more, in the hope that I might do some good to the country, in regard to a subject which is more important to us than anything but the battle in the front. I have been inspired by the hope that after these people who have ruined a navy, have gagged with the disgrace and contempt which awaits them, they will yet be a country for me and my children, which I can feel proud to call my own; and I did think that perhaps I might do something to insure that result. If, however, the present system goes on much longer, we will be an easy prey on the seas for some foreign Power, and our naval flag will disappear from the ocean as completely as our commercial one has done before the puny force of two or three steamers of very ordinary capacity, but yet superior to our entire navy, one of which now, with perfect safety, flies her rebel rag within two days' sail of New-York; and burns our ships almost within sight of our shores.

FROM PORTO RICO.

Very Hot Weather—Continued Drouth—The Commerce of Porto Rico—Steam Communication with New-York Wanted.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

ST. JOAN'S, PORTO RICO, Thursday, May 12, 1864.

The heated term has been fairly inaugurated here in this part of the West Indies, and thermometer at 88° and 92° in shade, is a fair average, and those who are able to leave are beginning to pack up for a trip to the United States or Europe.

This yearly anticipation is absolutely necessary to a foreign resident, for there is so little diversion or change here, that a trip abroad once a year is indispensable, else a life in the tropics would be dull, indeed. The Catholic feast days, of which there are about 140 a year celebrated here, and many with great eclat, become stale, and the weather is too hot to enjoy the "Bailes."

Porto Rico is suffering intensely by a drought, which has continued for a twelvemonth, and on the other side of the island it is literally scorched up, and these planters who have no canals or artificial irrigation do not par expenses this year with their sugar crop.

Of late the prices have taken an upward tendency, and sugar now sells from 5½c.@6½c. molasses 25c.@30c. per gallon; Coffee 16½c. Exchange on London 94 90 for the pound sterling.

St. Domingo remains in status quo. The sick soldiers, (of which there were 24,000,) are convalescing. Nevertheless, it is a dreadful sight to visit the hospitals here, overcrowded with these miasmatic fever patients.

What a pity that this island, that does most of its business with New-York, has no mail communication with it except by slow and circuitous routes. Here the steam navigation is almost altogether in the hands of the English, and they are preparing to run lines around the island, and also to build a railroad; but this enterprise ought to be in the hands of Americans, to secure the commerce that would then naturally flow to us. I inclose the Custom-house statistics of St. Thomas, a port of sufficient importance to be of interest to your readers.

The statistics of the same for the Island of Porto Rico have just been published, for 1863, viz.:

The importations for the year were—merchandise, &c.	$9,196,106 00
The exportations of sugar, coffee, &c.	8,792,961 00
Excess of imports over exports	$2,403,147 00

THE WAR IN GEORGIA.

Important Rebel Reinforcements—A Victory Claimed at New Hope—Strong Forces Across Thousand of Sherman's Division Said to be Fast Moving on Cassville.

The Richmond Enquirer publishes the following dispatches in its issue of Monday:

NEW-HOPE, NEAR MARIETTA, GA., Saturday, May 28, 1864.

Gen. CLEBURNE's division engaged the Fourth Army Corps, under HOWARD, about 1 o'clock this morning, and, after a desperate contest, signally repulsed the enemy, with a loss of between 5,000 and 7,000. We captured between 150 and 200 prisoners, exclusive of wounded, and immense quantities of arms and accoutrements. Gen. CLEBURNE says the enemy's dead were piled thicker than he ever saw before. Between 900 and 1,000 dead were left alone up to his front. Their line of breastworks in front of Loring's command was abandoned. Our loss is comparatively 200. Skirmishing is still going on against the enemy's left, which is gradually giving way.

NEW-HOPE, May 29, 1864.

GRANTSMEY's brigade was placed in action at 5 A. M. yesterday, when the enemy attempted to turn our flank. We had no defenses except a few temporary breastworks hastily collected by the cavalry which held the position as skirmishers before the brigade came up. The engagement immediately became furious, and raged with unabated violence until 8 P. M. The enemy's lines were advanced within five paces of ours several times, and were at all points repulsed. Having no support, the brigade was not allowed to hazard the position by a charge until noon, when WARNER's brigade assisted and took position immediately in their rear. The charge was then sounded, and the brigade swept through the woods, retaking three lines of battle without firing a gun, and capturing many prisoners.

BARNUM's regiment, of GOWAN's brigade, was detached at 5:30 P. M., and sent to the right of GRANTSMEY's, which was being outflanked. It arrived in time, and repulsed and drove the enemy. GRANTSMEY's loss was twenty-eight killed, and one hundred and sixty wounded; GRANTSMEY's, thirty-six killed, one hundred and twenty-five wounded, five missing.

The enemy left two hundred and eighty-eight dead on the field, and a large number wounded. These dead were all fifteenth BARNUM's Arkansas regiment, which was separated from GRANTSMEY's line by an interval of one hundred paces. The loss in GRANTSMEY's immediate front is one hundred and twenty-three killed, one thousand two hundred wounded, and many captured.

Prisoners report Maj. Gen. HOWARD and Brig.-Gen. KNOX wounded.

The skirmishing continued until nightfall, the enemy constantly shifting their positions from the centre to the left.

POLITICAL.

New-Hampshire.

INAUGURAL MESSAGE OF GOV. GILMORE.

Gov. GILMORE, who was recently reelected Governor of New-Hampshire, has transmitted on Thursday last, in his message, the State debt was represented to be $1,274,056 00—adding aid paid to families of volunteers, it will be $[illegible]. The Governor said this debt was not so large in proportion to the amount and resources of the people as that incurred by the revolutionary fathers in their great struggle for liberty, nor by it was there any risk of the State becoming bankrupt. No extravagance had led to its accumulation, and comparison with the outlays of other States would prove the degree of economy studied by the Government. The paying of this debt is urged at the earliest date, when money is plenty, and the finest of 6 per cent. bonds covering the amount, and payable in fifteen or twenty years, is recommended, as also the application by the State of a portion at least of the war debt incurred by cities and towns.

The State was represented to have a claim on the General Government, amounting to $[illegible]. The sum of $[illegible] was paid during the past year. In this connection, the Governor recommended that the disposition of State securities not the exemption of pecuniary responsibilities should be vested in the Governor and Council, in conjunction with the State Treasurer.

The financial condition of the railroads, banks and insurance companies showed no rapid down a prosperous one during the year, and no special legislation are demanded of them by the Legislature; yet it is otherwise with manufacturing corporations, which ought to be specially taxed in the same manner as railroads and banks. The law recently passed by the Massachusetts Legislature is commended as a pattern after which to legislate in this particular.

Next touching on military matters in the State, the Governor showed that the entire demand made by the draft during the last executive year was for 9,161 men; that the soldiers furnished by draft and otherwise during that period were 8,900—being a deficiency on State calls of 261—and that the whole number of men furnished up to May 10, 1864, was 25,667. There is an aggregate excess of enrolled men in certain towns of 414 to be credited to future calls; the recent draft in delinquent districts having been made to fill the deficiencies in the quotas thereto. Bounties to enlisted men have exceeded $600,000.

Gov. GILMORE proceeded to say that no new regiment had been raised in the State during the year. The cavalry of cavalry was enlarged to a full regiment, and notwithstanding the protest of the Republic, was sent out of the State in no proper condition to render effective service in the field. For some reason New-Hampshire had not received—his Excellency said—from the General Government that consideration to which her loyal conduct and distinguished valor of her sons would seem to demand. "Rhode Island," he said, "Connecticut and Massachusetts have each one United States General Hospital within their limits. Vermont has two. It seems hard to our sick and wounded soldiers to be carried within sight of their native hills to languish and die, and it is through no want of effort on my part that this state of things continues. Again, Connecticut has six general officers who have risen from the command of regiments. Since the war begun, Maine has twelve; Massachusetts, fifteen; New-Hampshire has one. It is not from the want of men who are qualified to command that the citizens of New-Hampshire are thus ignored. They never was a braver and more accomplished soldier than the lamented FURSTAN. Col. Garrow, of the Sixth Regiment, and Col. Pearson, of the Twelfth, have each successfully commanded not only a brigade, but a division. Other officers might be named who richly merit preferment, yet none of them have were 'over-ways.' I convey, express the feeling that, with the hearty and unstinted cooperation of those citizens of New-Hampshire who are resident in Washington, greater justice might be secured to our noble State." "But," the Governor continued, "if New-Hampshire has few generals, she has many heroes, and he proceeded to pay a deserved compliment to the gallant men of the Granite State, whose valor and fame were equal to any. A merited tribute was in turn paid to the noble dead, and sympathy to the relatives and friends of those who had conferred undying honor on the Commonwealth.

The State militia has only a nominal organization. The number enrolled is 29,563, 500 of whom are organized. The further practical efficiency of this body is left to the consideration of the Legislature. The promptitude of the uniformed militia in volunteering to take the place of the heavy artillery called into the field, is warmly complimented.

The prosperity of New-Hampshire, notwithstanding the heavy calls on her sons to brave the dangers of the battle-field, is represented to be in a healthy state. The condition of the people is better than could be anticipated; the population, judging by the census of the State, has not diminished, manufacturing labor is plenty, and high prices of labor have been compensated by an increase of wages; agricultural products have been plentiful; the public health has been good, and no signs of distress or want has been apparent.

After a brief review of the present situation and hopeful prospects of the war, the Governor concluded as follows: "A healthy spirit of enduring patriotism has supplanted that purely disguised indifference or cowardice which threatened the purchase of unobtrusive peace at the expense of our national honor. Men who never previously have been placed in command of our armies. The ends which first were accomplished by any of several strife have become more clearly defined, and more clearly recognized. The sky is not yet clear, but the clouds are breaking, the wind betokens fair weather. The heart of the patriot is cheered by the hope that soon a free, united and happy country shall shower smiling valley, and cluster around every towering hilltop, from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Let us then, and let our labor and pray with unshaken patriotism and unswerving earnestness. Let us count no task too great, no burden too heavy, which our country would have us to do or bear."

Tennessee.

A convention of the unconditional Union men of Tennessee was held at Nashville, May 26, to appoint delegates to the Baltimore Convention. M. M. Brien, of Davidson, and Dayne T. Stevenson, of Greene, were nominated delegates for the state at large, and the following resolutions were adopted among others:

Resolved, That while we just secured the abolition of Slavery with, in all its forms, we do not, we shall our posterity after us, against the recurrence of the horrors of another slavery rebellion, we deem it the duty of the Government of the United States, and the Government of the United States, under the Constitution thereof, as the Constitution of the rebellious States, is to be controlled and administered by him, and the patriotic and high-toned civilization shall assign him.

Resolved, That while we regret the further effusion of blood, and anxiously await the return of peace, we, the unconditional Union men of the Union, are not by the relentless cruelty and unpardonable pertinacity of the enemies of our common country—we alternative but to oppose force to force, until the banner of Freedom shall wave in triumph over every inch of soil in every rebellious State, and the supremacy of the Constitution, and the laws and proclamations made in pursuance thereof, shall be established and faithfully enforced therein.

We, therefore, impose the administration and war policy of President Lincoln, and pledge our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honors to defend and maintain it, as the best means of our future security, happiness and freedom; and therefore, resolved, that we recommend to the Baltimore Convention the renomination by the Republican Convention for the Presidency of the United States.

Resolved, That Gen. ANDREW JOHNSON, by his unflinching courage and patriotism, has endeared himself to all American patriots, and by his unsurpassed services, especially by his administration of affairs in this State during his term as Military Governor thereof, he has gained the entire confidence of all the loyal people of Tennessee, and we most earnestly recommend him for the second place in the gift of the loyal people of the United States.

Resolved, That we congratulate the country and the Government on the successful commencement of the great Northwestern Railroad with the Tennessee River, whereby a permanent communication is effected between the heart of the northwest States and the waters of the Great West, and a double iron rail and rivet communication opened up from the Mississippi and Ohio Rivers, through Nashville, to Charleston and Knoxville. The energetic accomplishment of this stupendous enterprise gives earnest of the speedy success of the Federal arms, and stands as an enduring monument of the wisdom, patriotism and sagacity of Hon. E. M. STANTON and Gov. ANDREW JOHNSON, under whose patronage and direction this important connection has been effected.

Union Convention in Florida.

The loyal people of Florida, to the number of several hundred voters, met a few days since pursuant to a call for that purpose, in convention at Jacksonville, and nominated delegates to the Baltimore Convention. C. A. HAMMOND, Esq., of Jacksonville, was chosen President, and J. C. SAPPERS as Secretary.

Delegates were chosen from all parts of the State. John M. Price, I. N. Rutland, Judge Letts, C. A. Robinson and D. S. Dunham were chosen as a committee to prepare a memorial to the President.

J. W. Price, Judge Letts, I. N. Rutland, Charles Steger and Wm. S. Dale were appointed a Committee on Resolutions. They reported a series, of which the following were part:

Whereas, A call has been signed by the Delegates Union Convention for the establishment of a National Union Convention at Baltimore on the 7th day of June, for the purpose of putting in nomination for the Presidency and Vice President of the United States; and

Whereas, Action of country in extent commencing near of the Rio Grande and ending within the military lines of the forces of the United States, and within which yields and have taken the oath of allegiance to the United States, recognize the President of the United States as the Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy, and the President for the United States Government; and

Whereas, It is our purpose to do our duty, and to aid in the establishment of a Union Government, under which we can again enjoy the happiness and prosperity so long enjoyed; and

Resolved, That we, as loyal citizens of the State of Florida, are entitled to a voice in the nomination of the President of which we are a part; and, that it is the duty of our State Delegates to be unanimously as one of the delegates of the Union, that we are citizens of the United States, and are the last entitled to a voice in the National Convention.

Resolved, That we are unswerving in our loyalty to the United States, subject to no condition, and unalterable in our determination; and, that some wind-swept, war-stricken heart to and confidence in the Government shall remain unscathed.

Resolved, That we most earnestly solicit the protection of the Government of the United States, in reinstating our State Government and authority not only over the territory within our Federal lines, but throughout the whole State.

A resolution was also adopted tendering Mr. LINCOLN for renomination.

The following gentlemen were appointed a Union Executive Committee of the State of Florida, with full power to take all necessary action and measures for organizing a State Government, for the said State of Florida:

John W. Price, Isaac N. Rutland, Jr., J. M. Letts, C. A. Robinson, D. S. Dunham.

Spirited speeches were made by various members of the convention, and at its close, three rousing cheers were given for the

THE BOOKS.

[illegible] in the existing literature of literary matter, [illegible] it is almost impossible to keep up with the current of publication on any given subject in America, England, France and Germany—much less to carry investigations backward into times [illegible] that furnishes the student with the luxury of reading and inquiry on a special subject of research is more of a favorable character. In this view Mr. TUCKERMAN's work will be extremely acceptable to many [illegible] as it does, an elegant and spirited survey of a class of books that seems representation of is felt to be indispensable in every American library, while now but a large public collection would like to be burdened by the whole number, supposing such a thing to be obtainable. The value of a critical guide like that before us is at first obvious as affording the basis for a judicious selection, independently of its intrinsic interest as a curious chapter in literary history. Wonderful, indeed, is the discouraging and overwhelming power of Time—the trashiest book—the feebleest or most ferocious utterance hiding itself in neglected print—of to-day—when once a portion of the pitiless and inexorable past becomes a thing for historians to study, for philosophers to discuss. The course of history is a composite structure, built up principally by the aggregation of materials [illegible] rejected as too small or [illegible] of the annual workmen, like [illegible] to penetrate to and lay [illegible] human action, from the slight indications afforded by the outward form and presence of things apparently the most trivial, but pregnant with suggestion when rightly considered. Of this class was originally a large portion of the materials on which the early history of the United States of America must rest. State papers and documents may supply the bony skeleton, the framework of the narrative, but the mind demands something more succulent. In the country itself the struggle for life was too engrossing to allow much time for the jotting down of facts that might illustrate its social progress. The great present was too earnestly felt, where its existing in its claims on all to be written about in the abstract spirit that only comes with ease and reflection; consequently, we are dependent on the reports of those whom chance brought to our shores for the lights and shadows that give animation and expression to the city of the past. Thus the most curious account of Boston and its inhabitants in the early part of the last century that remains to us, is given by a bookseller, the famous JOHN DUNTON, who brought over a cargo of literary wares for speculation, and opened a store in Boston to dispose of it. His "Life and Errors" narrates his experience in New-England, but has not apparently fallen in Mr. TUCKERMAN's way. We may say indeed, once for all, that a work of this kind being founded on bibliography, a more exact acquaintance with that study would have cleared it of many errors of names and dates, and rooted numerous misprints which are now very offensive to the eyes of those who discern them, and have supplied many omissions that would have added to the interest and completeness of the undertaking. One obvious defect, only, will we mention, that is, the want of a methodical or chronological catalogue raisonné of the authors, analyzed or referred to, in the text; others it might seem invidious to dwell upon, as they do not largely detract from the value of the book for general readers. Mr. TUCKERMAN's object is (as he himself declares) "two-fold—to present a general view of the traits and transitions of our country, as recorded at different periods, and by writers of various nationalities; and to afford those desirous of authentic information in regard to the United States, a guide to the sources thereof"—the latter incidentally involving the discussion of the comparative value and interest of the principal critics of our civilization. Starting with the discovery of the continent, a rapid introductory view is taken of the early voyages and explorers who have left the memorials of their expeditions, often the results of romantic adventure worthy of the [illegible] of the world, that must always remain positive in the estimation of those to whose ancestors the goodly land they possess was by them laid open and made accessible. They fall into two great divisions as far as the present United States are concerned. The founders of Virginia and of New-England, of whom Capt. JOHN SMITH and Gov. WINTHROP may be taken as the respective types. Brief notice is made of the Northern navigators and their half-mythical Vineland, but the work only fairly commences with the next chapter, dedicated to the French pioneering explorers of New-York, Canada and the Great West, HENNEPIN, MENARD, ALLOUEZ, MARQUETTE, CHARLEVOIX, &c. The literary of these enlightened men, devoted to their self-imposed task—not to be swerved from it by any considerations of personal safety, but often sacrificing their lives to the maintenance of the principles that inspired them—still lingers fragrantly over many a sunny cove and inlet in the great lakes—many a haunted isle in the blue waters of the St. Lawrence. There is no purer page in history than that devoted to the unadorned recital of their labors. As related by themselves, the simplicity of the tone adopted shows that they were following in the straight forward path of duty, unconscious that future generations would look up to them admiringly as the true pioneers of civilization, in regions more weird and remote than the fabulous associations, that we can now hardly realize. Chronicling the treatment of his [illegible] by the Indians, Mr. TUCKERMAN next [illegible] the journals of French travelers and writers whose connection with the War of the Revolution caused their testimony to be eagerly sought for in Europe, and still furnishes us with many of the most interesting details that we possess relative to that event. Prominent among them is the lively and entertaining Marquis de CHASTELLUX, whose travels are well analyzed; the Abbé ROSIN, Chaplain to Gen. ROCHAMBEAU, and the unfortunate BRISSOT DE WARVILLE, who visited America fatally to his future let in his native country, where he died a victim to the vain attempt of naturalizing in an uncongenial soil the ideas he had imbibed abroad. Great names of statesmen thrown on these shores by the storms of the French Revolution follow quickly, CHATEAUBRIAND, TALLEYRAND, GERUZ, LA ROCHEFOUCAULD, VOLNEY and others, have all left memorials of their impressions more or less satisfactory, and at the present day French travel culminates in the height of mental culture, that yields the clear philosophic vision and the power of generalization from scattered and imperfect data characterizing the works of DE TOCQUEVILLE, CHEVALIER, DE BEAUMONT, POUSSIN, AMPERE, DE GASPARIN, &c. The English travelers come next in order. Foremost among them stands the apostolical figure of BERKELEY. The personal history of this self-denying prelate [illegible] in Rhode-Island, of the Revolution, and in the [illegible] of the Revolution, [illegible] in this chapter. The names that follow are of a very miscellaneous character, and there are none to equal in attraction those that the record of French travel has to show. Even the Revolution itself was little productive of book making in England, compared with what now follows any striking event; probably the unfortunate issue of the conflict may have rendered it a subject that afforded little gratification to the Georgian era of readers. The idyllic pictures of rural life in New-York, by Mrs. GRANT, of Laggan, are the chief domestic English memorials of the anti-revolutionary period in our Northern States. A few participants in the war and its results have left personal narrations, as CAPT. ANBURY, a captive with BURGOYNE's army, and WILLIAM ROBIN, the royalist collector of the customs at Baltimore, and others; but the total amount of information so preserved is not important. It was in the next generation—when the economic advantages of America as a home and refuge for the multitudes struggling for mere existence in Europe first attracted attention—that the shoal of English travelers properly begins, and continues to the present day in scarcely abated numbers. Too numerous to be all characterized, Mr. TUCKERMAN gives a fair account of the more prominent among them, doing justice to the descriptive powers and vivacity of Mrs. TROLLOPE, the conscientious dullness of Capt. BASIL HALL, the glowing admiration for nature of FANNY KEMBLE, the scientific accuracy of Sir CHARLES LYELL, while he justly animadverts on the uniformity that generally marks their structures on the social condition and aspects of life in the country they describe. The name of this class is legion, but nearly all of any pretension will be found alluded to in Mr. TUCKERMAN's book. The northern European writers, mostly from Germany, afford materials for the next chapter, and the following one completes the European travelers and commentators by an enumeration of those of Italy, several of whom are curious, and little known. In conclusion some space is allotted to the home travelers who have extended the knowledge of the continent of their birth or adoption, in the interests of science and commerce, and to the general works descriptive of the United States, as an aggregate, destined for the information of foreigners or our own countrymen. The work cannot fail to be generally useful, and fills a place in our libraries as yet unoccupied.

LITERARY GOSSIP.

—The indifference, haste and carelessness usually observable in England on the decease of the editors of celebrated, and particularly of literary men, immediately after their decease, was never more strongly exemplified than in the recent sale of THACKERAY's library and papers. From the accounts of the auction it is evident that the most valuable materials for his biography were scattered and dispersed without a thought of their intrinsic value, or the purpose to which they might be properly applied. As a sample, among the lots were "four large drawers, like those of a kitchen dresser," full of books, not very inviting in outward aspect, but the more valuable because they had been actually "used up" by the late owner, and were crowded with his memoranda, sketches, notes, &c. These are all now being catalogued and invariably set forth to the public, at high prices by the booksellers, who made a fortunate speculative purchase of these and other similar lots. Among them we notice one trifle worth mentioning—"Sketch Book of Mr. THACKERAY during a tour in France in 1843 and 1845, with upward of forty colored pen-and-ink and pencil drawings of shipping, old buildings, churches, characteristic figures, landscape groups, &c., including 'Rouen,' 'Honfleur,' 'The Banks of the Seine,' &c., very spirited, full of character, and ready for publication." This valuable relic is priced, not immodestly, at six guineas. In one of his "Roundabout Papers," THACKERAY mentions that the two favorite books he was accustomed to take to bed with him was Montaigne's Essays and Howell's Letters. The relic-hunter may secure, no doubt, the identical copy of old Howell for the small sum of five shillings sterling. An American book—MILLER'S Rifle, Axe and Saddlebags, with the autograph THACKERAY in fancy letters, is now highly priced at one pound. The catalogue before us contains one hundred and twenty-six lots of a similar character, including presents of copies from authors to THACKERAY, books belonging to his father, others given to his daughters, &c., the sale of which seems to show a sad want of feeling, when there could be no pecuniary necessity to excuse it, as the property left by the novelist was estimated for the legacy duties at twenty thousand pounds.

—Some valuable materials for the illustration of the American Revolutionary War are now appearing in Germany. It will be recollected how much important aid Mr. BANCROFT has derived in his later volumes from the papers of some of the German Generals engaged on the Royalist side during the contest. A systematic work devoted to the services of German troops who were employed by England against the colonists, has just been commenced by Major Pentzen, an officer of the Hessian Army, who has undertaken as a patriotic service to chronicle the deeds of his countrymen in the New World. More than twenty-five thousand of them were engaged in the service for seven years, and the accumulated matter which he has collected during thirty years devoted to the study of the subject, is the scope of letters, diaries and other documents, in manuscript. The first volume of his book, Der Amerikanische Unabhängigkeits Krieg, is just published at Kassel. The entire work promises to be voluminous, too much so, probably, for reproduction here, but it will be, no doubt, carefully examined by future historians of our Revolution, who will appear from time to time, as the subject can never lose its interest for the civilized branches of the great human family whose sphere is constantly extending its boundaries.

—The progressive nature of oriental studies is shown by a late work on the Phoenician language, by Dr. LEVY, of Breslau. Thirty years ago, the great philologist GESENIUS undertook the subject, and, in a work that was considered classic, first defined its nature and limits, and applied to its illustration all the resources of his vast learning and linguistic acumen. At that time the number of words recognized as belonging to the Phoenician language, and generally decipherable by the help derived from the cognate Shemitic tongues, was about three hundred. The discovery of inscriptions, coins, &c., in Syria, Carthagena and the Phoenician colonies in the South of France, have increased the vocabulary to nine hundred words, all of which are investigated or explained in the Phoenician Vocabulary of Dr. Levy. It thus supplies a starting-point for future explorers, and condenses all the knowledge extant to the present time. An important work in a kindred branch of study is in progress by Dr. DAVIDSON, who has undertaken an English translation of Dr. FUNCK'S Hebrew and Chaldee Dictionary of the Old Testament, from the German original, incorporating numerous original additions. It will be printed in Germany, though intended for sale in England. The cheapness of labor in Germany, and the attention paid to correctness, has led to much work of this kind being done there for the English publishers, as the entire abolition of the import duties on books, paper, &c., affords them direct access to the cheapest market, wherever it may be.

—Some late general statistical returns give a startling glimpse of the great extension and development of periodical literature in Great Britain. The total circulation of the weekly newspapers proper, all published in London, is 1,100,000, excluding the illustrated newspapers, which circulate half a million, and the sporting papers, a quarter of a million. All the other subjects, law, literature, science, and politics and speculation, religion, &c., contend to make up another half million of weekly journals exclusively devoted to their interest, so that the entire weekly periodical circulation is over two and a quarter millions. Its monthly publications, periodical literature, which comparatively a few years since was nothing, is far ahead of all others. Eighty four religious journals at various prices, issue very nearly one million and a half copies, while the entire amount of the monthly magazines, as Blackwood, Fraser, The Cornhill, &c., only reaches 240,000. The aggregate issue of the daily London newspapers is about a quarter of a million copies, making annually seven-twenty and a half million copies, an increase of nearly half on the last ten years.

—The sale by Mr. JAMES B. COOLEY of Boston's libraries, on May 30 and 31, afforded a gratifying proof of the extent and resources of our book trade. The stock to be disposed of amounted, at present rates, to nearly eighty thousand dollars in value, and had been accumulating during the time—nearly twenty years—that the series had been placed "as depot" in this country for the convenience of purchasers—a liberal arrangement, to which much of its popularity and general circulation was undoubtedly owing. The whole of this large stock of books, amounting, perhaps, to 75,000 volumes, was cleared off without difficulty in two evenings, to the trade of New-York, Boston, Philadelphia and Baltimore, all which cities were represented at the sale. The result is expected to be a great increase in the demand for the sterling publications which, enterprise these series of libraries, as by thus sowing them broadcast over the land at lower prices than heretofore, they will be introduced in new channels, and the knowledge of them will be spread abroad in quarters that they never before reached. Messrs. SCRIBNER & Co. will continue to be agents for the new owners, Messrs. BELL & DADY, of London.

—There is an odd fancy in the American public to confer European titles on people who have not received them, at least as often as to retrench them from those to whom they properly belong. "Sir BENJAMIN West" is still a common appellation for the worthy Quaker artist, who lived and died a simple Esquire, and quite recently the literary papers have been speaking of "Sir WILLIAM CHAMBERS," the plain Edinburgh printer and publisher—a creation equally visionary and unfounded. Mr. CHAMBERS is employing the leisure afforded by his retirement from active business in writing the History of the County Peeblesshire, of which he and his brother ROBERT are natives—a fact commemorated, posteriorly by their generous endowment of a literary institution at the county town Selkirk.

—Almost coincident with the Tercentenary Shakesperian Anniversary will be the dispersal of the second finest collection of rare editions of the works of SHAKESPEARE, and the whole circle of literature connected with the illustration of the great poet of humanity that exists. For a long time, the Shakesperian library of Thos. P. BARNES, Esq., of New-York, has confessedly owned only two superiors—those belonging to the Duke of Devonshire and to Mr. GEORGE DANCE, of Islington, near London. The recent death of that gentleman has led to the dispersion of his library, which takes place in London during the present month, under the hammer of Messrs. SOTHEBY, the literary auctioneers. The finest copy known, of the "First Folio" SHAKESPEARE is the chief item of the collection, followed by a nearly complete set of the early quartos of the separate plays, all of the highest degree of rarity and in superb condition. The collection of Elizabethan literature includes many unique books, and "A Most Wonderful Series of Black Letter Ballads," choice autographs of former owners, &c., &c.

The Quota of New-York Full.

Although Provost-Marshal-General HAYS disallows the claim of the Supervisors' Committee to an excess of more than 1,000 men on the quota of this City, it will be seen from the following acknowledgment that even with that deduction we are still slightly ahead:

OFFICE A. A. PROVOST-MARSHAL-GENERAL AND SUPERINTENDENT VOLUNTEER RECRUITING SERVICE, SUPERVISORS DISTRICT OF NEW-YORK, June 2, 1864.

Orson Bland, Esq., Chairman Volunteer Committee Board of Supervisors, N. Y.:

SIR: From the records of this office, it appears that on May 31, 1864, the quota of New-York County, by under the calls of the President for 500,000 and 300,000 men is filled, with an excess of sixty-six men.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

(Signed) WILLIAM HAYS,

Brig.-Gen. Vol. and A. A. P. M. General.

A Notorious Gambling House Broken Up—Seventeen Gamblers in Custody.

Sergeant SLATER, of the Eighth Precinct, accompanied by Roundsman CASTLE, and Officers EGAN, Miller, Fenton, Adams, Traver and Spurbeck, were yesterday commissioned to search certain houses in Mercer-street, for deserters. In the course of their travels they entered the premises No. 21 Mercer-street. There there found gambling going on very extensively, seventy-two being found in the room with faro tables, roulette, &c. Seventeen men were arrested and many of them intelligent looking men, were conveyed before Justice DOWLING of the Jefferson Market Police Court, by the officers above named. These gave their names as follows: Andrew Glenker, tailor; Francis Schmidt, cut passer; John Wise, tobacconist; Patrick Egan; Henry Vassell; John Moore; Andrew Andrews; Thomas Johnson; Harry Howard; Benjamin Grigg; James Joyce; Thomas Ory; Thomas Smith; James Lawrence; Joseph Myers; James Nelson and Edward McCloskey. All whom, it is alleged, were engaged in gambling at the time of the arrest. They were committed to answer. A large number of stocks, one boxes, and other gambling implements were taken possession of by the police.

GENERAL CITY NEWS.

THE LAWRENCE MASSACRE.—Our readers will doubtless remember the account we gave at the time of the horrible atrocities committed by QUANTRELL and his bloody band on the defenceless and unsuspecting inhabitants of Lawrence, on the morning of the 21st of last August. They will also doubtless be interested to hear an account of it by an eye-witness of the tragic scenes. Rev. Mr. PARSONS, President Baker University, Kansas, and Pastor of the Methodist Church in Lawrence, who was himself on QUANTRELL's death-roll, and was shot at by the ruffians, will give an account of what he saw on that awful morning, to-morrow (Sabbath), the 5th inst. He will speak at the Hanson-place M. E. Church, Brooklyn, (Rev. Mr. WOODWORTH,) at 10½ A. M., and at Fleet-street M. E. Church, Brooklyn, (Rev. Mr. HAVILAND,) at 7½ P. M. Those who have heard him tell us that he is an interesting, thrilling and eloquent speaker.

CONSECRATION OF A JEWISH SYNAGOGUE.—The new Jewish synagogue of the congregation "Ahaveth Chesed," corner of Avenue C and Fourth-street, was consecrated yesterday afternoon, with the ceremonies of the Hebrew Church. (The building was formerly owned by the Avenue C Presbyterian Church, but since its purchase by the Jewish congregation it has been entirely renovated, refitted and decorated, and will now seat about 600 persons. The dedicatory address was delivered by Rev. Dr. LILIENTHAL, of Cincinnati, Ohio, and the concluding address by Rev. Dr. S. M. ISAACS, of this City. The music specially for the occasion was rendered by an select choir, under the direction of Mr. WIZNER, of the Temple. Exercises will be held in this synagogue to-day, and also on Sunday. On Sunday Dr. WISE will preach in English. Subject—"Reform Within the Pale of Judaism."

TESTIMONIAL TO A DESERVING OFFICER.—Mr. HARRY D. WHITEHOUSE, roundsman of the Sixteenth Police Precinct, having been appointed Sailing Master in the United States Navy, has resigned his position as policeman. As a mark of respect, the Police of the Sixteenth Ward yesterday presented him with a sword, epaulettes and a full uniform of his rank. The presentation took place at Washington Hall, corner of Eighth-avenue and Eighteenth-street, and was made by Capt. HAUSER on behalf of his command. Mr. WHITEHOUSE has already had some experience in naval affairs. He was in PARRY'S Japan expedition, and in the Naval Brigade sent after the commencement of the war.

CROTON BOARD CONTRACT FOR IRON PIPE.—The Croton Aqueduct Board yesterday opened three proposals for furnishing a large quantity of cast-iron water-pipe. One bid was informal. The successful bid was made by the Warren Foundry and Machine Company, of Phillipsburgh, N. J., for the specified quantities, and at prices as follows: 4,000 feet of 16-inch pipe, at $60 per ton; 9,000 feet of 12-inch pipe, at $2 70 per foot; 18,000 feet of 6-inch pipe, at $1 35 per foot; 2,000 feet of 4-inch pipe, at 80 cents per foot; 24 branch pipes, at $100 60 per ton.

FATAL FALL.—An inquest was held yesterday by Coroner RAHRT on the body of WM. F. LAMBERT, a stage-driver on the Fifth-avenue line, who died from injuries received on Saturday last, by falling from his box to the pavement, while passing through Fulton-street. A verdict of accidental death was rendered. Deceased was 24 years of age, and a native of New-Jersey.

THE BROOKLYN CRIM. COURT.—The June term of this court will commence on Monday next, when the calendar will be taken up, embracing from No. 1 to 13, inclusive, and Nos. 15, 16, 18, 19, 20, 22, 23.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE REBELLION.

There is no official news from Gen. GRANT late than his dispatch of Wednesday morning, published yesterday. The steamer Keyport, which left White House on Wednesday at noon, and arrived at Washington yesterday, reports that very heavy cannonading was heard when she left, and rumors had come from the front that a severe battle was in progress. We give from the pen of our special correspondent full details of the operations down to Tuesday night, which will be found of intense interest.

The rebels keep making attacks on Gen. BUTLER, but they seem to be only feints to cover some other and more important proceedings.

Gen. SHERMAN telegraphs on Thursday evening, at 7 P. M., that everything is progressing satisfactorily. BROWNLOW's cavalry, by a skillful movement, had obtained possession of Allatoona Gap, which was announced of high importance. Important movements, undoubtedly looking to the capture of Atlanta, were in progress.

A letter to the St. Louis Republican, dated Resaca, Geo., May 27, states that the rebel Gen. WHEELER made a descent upon one of our trains at Cass Station, six miles below Kingston, on the evening of the 24th, and destroyed seventy wagons and captured a large number of mules, after which he sought for tall timber. Nearly all the teamsters were robbed and set at liberty, but two or three commissioned officers were furnished with an escort and accompanied his command. The same letter states that there was a narrow escape from a terrible disaster at Resaca on the evening of the 24th. While a thunderstorm was raging, a stack of Rebel ammunition, amounting to forty or fifty tons, was struck by lightning and the powder burned in several boxes of rifle cartridges; but, fortunately, it did not communicate with the vast heap of loaded shell. At the same time this occurred, the gun of one of the guard was struck, and the stock was knocked off in splinters and himself badly stunned.

Advices from Memphis to the 31st inst. state that the ironclads Marmora, Juliet and Prairie Bird recently drove away the rebel batteries at Gaines' Landing. The marine brigade sent Delia and her donkey-engine shot overboard and her engineer killed. The rebels are said to have had twelve pieces of artillery. They captured and burned the steamer Lebanon, taking the crew and passengers off as prisoners. Some 15,000 rebels are said to be marching on Duval's Bluff. On Monday last the rebel Gen. SHELBY captured Dardanelle and took some 300 prisoners. Jacksonport and Reisville have been evacuated by our forces.

Brig.-Gen. WILKOX was not, as at first reported, mortally wounded in the battle of Resaca, Georgia, but only slightly, in the ankle, on some far beyond the mark, struck by a musket-ball, which entered the front part of the right side and came out in the vicinity of the spine.

CONGRESS.

In the Senate, yesterday, a memorial was received from the New-York Chamber of Commerce, in favor of establishing a Navy-yard at New-London, Conn. Three thousand extra copies of the National Bank Bill were ordered printed. A bill to incorporate the Potomac Ferry Company was introduced and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia. A petition was presented, setting forth that many citizens in Canada were induced by the use of inflammatory bills and asking Congress for some remedy. The petition was laid on the table. The bill for the relief of Wisconsin was discussed until the adjournment of the morning hour. The bill to facilitate commerce between the Atlantic and Pacific States was reported back with an amendment. In the evening, the bill to punish counterfeiting United States coin was passed, and the Tax Bill was considered until the hour of adjournment.

In the House of Representatives, a resolution was reported to allow mileage and salary to Mr. McKinney and Mr. BURR, who contested the seats of Messrs. TRAVWICK and KING, which was tabled. A bill creating an additional Inspector of Steamboats in the Memphis Collection District was concurred in. A bill making appropriations for ordinary civil expenditures was postponed until Wednesday next for consideration. The bill granting alternate sections of land to Michigan to aid in the construction of certain railroads was passed. The Tariff Bill was then taken up and some additional amendments made. At the evening session the Secretary of the Treasury was authorized to sell the Marine Hospital and grounds at Chicago and with the proceeds purchase a more healthy and desired location. The Bankrupt Bill was brought up for consideration. Mr. ELIHU MAPES and Mr. [illegible] spoke at length in favor of a Mr. GARFIELD's Gold Speculation Bill was brought up for discussion, when it was [illegible].

GENERAL NEWS.

The trial of SEWARD HUFFER for the murder of his wife, whose Executor HOFFMAN is the Count of General Sessions, ended yesterday in a verdict of murder in the second degree. The trial has occupied ten days, and excited unusual interest. The prosecution was conducted by O. L. SEWARD, Assistant District Attorney, the counsel for the prisoner were J. F. WALTON and H. L. CLARKE. There was no question raised as to the prisoner's having committed the homicide. The general management of the case and the summing up devolved upon Mr. CLARKE, whose indefatigable exertions in behalf of the prisoner are worthy of special mention. The jury were out forty-eight hours endeavoring to arrive at a verdict. It is understood that about half of the jury were at first in favor of a conviction of the capital crime. The prisoner had previously borne a good character, and was attended during the trial by many faithful friends.

At Chambers of the Supreme Court yesterday, Justice JOSEPH F. HARRIS, of the Second District, held, in the matter of a writ of habeas corpus obtained by a father for the recovery of his child, that although it was not shown that the child was detained by any restraint or force, and although the contrary was shown, and also that the child was in good hands, and was very much attached to the relatives taking care of her, still if nothing was shown against the character of the father, and he was able to take care of his child, he was entitled to its custody, notwithstanding its opposition. The child was eleven years of age, and left the Court in much grief because she had to leave her uncle and aunt, and go with her father and step-mother.

It is announced in a letter from London that Mr. GEORGE PEABODY, the great London banker, will retire finally from active business in October next, when his existing partnership terminates. The house will continue, but its name will be changed. It is also stated that Mr. PEABODY is desirous to return to and spend the greater part of the rest of his life in the United States, but that he has resolved never to gratify that wish until the Union is restored.

The Washington Star states that although all the Government property and stores have been removed from Port Royal, on the Rappahannock, troops were being landed there on Sunday and Monday, who would doubtless march overland to reinforce Gen. GRANT.

The Baltimore Clipper mentions a report current in that city that the hotel keepers intend to charge seven dollars per day during the session of the Baltimore Convention. The Clipper exhorts the people of that city to put down this attempts at extortion by opening their houses.

Popular Delusion in the South—A Letter from Interior Texas.

We publish this morning, upon our supplementary leaf, a letter from the interior of Texas, depicting with great vividness the Confederate system of imposition. The North, in judging the conduct of the Southern people, has always failed to make just account of the extent to which they have been deluded. Surprise is expressed that they should have ever been drawn into the rebellion at all, and that, having been drawn into it, they should so generally cling to it with such fierceness. The wonder rather should be that their revolutionary passion has not been more intense. Such infernal falsehood could not have unrestricted play upon human nature anywhere without inflaming it to madness.

We constantly mistake in applying to the Southern people the Northern standard of intelligence. We have common school instruction that enables every man to read, and newspapers that give all public information, and treat all sides of public questions, so that the popular mind can never be seriously deceived. The mass of the Southern people, through the policy of the slave power, have never had a common school instruction, read little or not at all, and depend almost entirely upon their political leaders for all their opinions of public affairs. That has always been their condition, and it was thereby that they were open to all the monstrous lying of the demagogues who prepared the cry for this rebellion. It was thereby that YANCEY and his fellow-conspirators were enabled to carry out their programme "to fire the Southern heart and precipitate the South into revolution." It was thereby that the lower class were made to believe that the election of ABRAHAM LINCOLN was a declaration of war upon Southern institutions, that John Brown's raid was but the precursor of a general crusade for abolition and devastation, that the North had deliberately cut loose from all constitutional obligations, and that there was no remedy, no alternative, but to declare their independence of so faithless a people, and, with their own right arms, to defend their rights and their honor. It was thereby that they were made to believe that the Northern people were a race of money-worshipers, and of natural cowards, who would never fight—that the Northern Democracy would fly to arms against the Government, if it should attempt to subjugate the South—that foreign nations would not and could not do without cotton, and would surely stop the war, if any were undertaken. Thus the election was so turned as to sweep out the Gulf States one after another in quick succession. When the Border States, whose people lived nearer to and knew more of the North, hesitated and lingered, the President's proclamation calling for troops, after the attack on Fort Sumter, was, in like manner, made the occasion of whirling the people into a paroxysm by unbounded lying. Telegrams flew to Richmond that Gen. SCOTT had resigned, and had tendered his services to Virginia—that Washington was paralyzed, and that Pennsylvania was in open revolt. In the meantime the New-York Seventh had been cut up by the Marylanders—that the Seventh had refused to invade—that the Seventy-first had been sent to the Navy-yard for disaffection—that New-York was under mob law—that Secretary CAMERON had started for Richmond to beg an armistice of sixty days—and so on, until the popular excitement was wrought up to such a pitch that the Secession ordinances were carried without resistance.

It was by practicing upon their ignorance, in this unscrupulous style, that the Southern people were first induced to submit to secession; and it is only through this systematic mendacity that they have been kept to this submission. If before the rebellion the Southern people had but a glimmering perception of public events, since the rebellion they have been enveloped in Egyptian darkness. Every ray of truth has been shut from them for three years. This Texas correspondent forcibly describes the sensations of himself and his neighbors, when two New-York papers, and one from New-Orleans, found their way to them this Spring. The intelligence of a single day or two, which they contained, was like a flood of light to them—like the blaze of the midday sun through dungeon doors suddenly swung open. It is testified in this letter that "our most intelligent men" have really been made to believe that Washington has been taken and burnt; that the President and his Cabinet were chased to Baltimore, thence to Philadelphia, and thence to New-York, and that they finally were all taken prisoners; that the Federal armies have been beaten everywhere; that the European nations have recognized Southern independence; that Confederate bonds were at a premium in Europe, and were worth more than United States bonds even in Wall-street; that the Confederate currency was now good as gold all over the Confederacy except (through peculiar circumstances) in that particular locality; that the Northern people were unanimous against the war; that no draft could be enforced, and that our soldiers as their terms of service expired universally refused to reënlist. Not a word had been heard about the movements in Louisiana and Arkansas for a return to the Union, even though these States directly border upon Texas. In short, it could be hardly possible for a people above the level of primitive barbarism, to be more completely benighted than these people in interior Texas are represented to have been for the last three years, by one of themselves, whose statements carry upon their face the evidence of their truth.

And yet this unlimited system of falsehood concerning Confederate successes and Federal ruin, is insufficient to keep the people contented with the army. They adhere to it simply because an absolute despotism leaves them no alternative. Our correspondent expresses his conviction that "a large majority of the people, in camp and at home, wish we were conquered to-day"—and that to get peace they would take it on any terms. We were prepared to believe this. It is not in human nature to endure such dreadful trials as the non-slaveholding class of the South have been experiencing from the beginning of this rebellion, without an impatience to escape from them by any means possible. "Subjugation" cannot be painted to the imaginations of these people in colors strong enough to impel them to fight longer, if left to their own volitions. The prolongation of the war has at least had this great benefit; it has intensified Southern sufferings so as to make peace all the more eagerly longed for, and all the more secure when it is finally attained. When the work—now in such grand progress—of destroying the two great armies of the rebellion is completed, the pacification of the mass of the Southern people, and their full restoration to loyal citizenship, will be accomplished with an ease that is not now generally anticipated. We believe that a tremendous popular reaction will set in against the leaders of the rebellion, throughout the entire South, within a month after their armies experience the last decisive blow—a reaction corresponding in vehemence to the flagrancy of the imposition their leaders have thus far, with impunity, practised.

Liberalism in England.

It is now generally acknowledged in England that Mr. GLADSTONE's late speech on the extension of the franchise, indicates pretty clearly his political future. It marks him out, beyond question, for the leadership of the Liberal party which, it is acknowledged, will step into power after the Tories have had one more turn in office. The present Ministry is already in a very shaky condition, and nothing except the want of a decided, well-marked policy on the part of the Opposition has prevented its overthrow ere now. The Tories have been very successful in finding fault with its conduct in this or that matter, but when an occasion arose for a trial of strength, they have never been able to trace any broad lines of difference that would distinguish their general course, if placed in power, from that of the present Cabinet; and without this there was, of course, little use in leading their followers to the attack, with the positive design of ousting the Ministry. On the great question which has, ever since the revolution of 1688, divided Whig and Tory—the mode of distributing the governing power among the different classes of the nation—both PALMERSTON and DISRAELI have been as one for the last four years. Their conflicts have, under these circumstances, lost all interest and excitement.

The scene, however, is now changed. PALMERSTON is old, and from the duration of his late attack of gout is evidently failing. He may drop off any day. Lord RUSSELL has lost the fire and vigor, and, we may add, the ambition, which are prime requisites of a leader in any field. When either of them goes out of office the truce between the two great parties is at an end. With GLADSTONE as their leader the Liberals come into the fight with blood and battle cry. They come more become the advocates of change, and the Tories of delay.

It is not at all probable, however, that GLADSTONE and his followers will be strong enough to step into the places left vacant by the break up of the present Cabinet. He has, doubtless, already lost a large number of the so-called Liberals by the boldness of his recent declaration. The more timid members of his own party will refuse to follow him into deep water; and though he will derive a large accession of strength from the adhesion of the Radicals proper, it will take some time to get the men brought into sufficiently good discipline and training to enable them to act together in office. They will therefore most likely pass a period of probation in opposition. The course of events after the next change will probably resemble that which was witnessed in 1851. Lord DERBY will come in with DISRAELI as Chancellor of the Exchequer, and MALMESBURY in the Foreign Office. There will be from six months to a year of blundering and of futile efforts to hit upon some better programme than general abstinence from all action of any kind on any question. There will be a good deal of coquetting with the reactionary powers of the continent, and with the Confederacy, if it should be then in existence, ending with an ignominious downfall before a torrent of public disgust. And then GLADSTONE will step in.

The Two Armies.

The two great armies now confront each other definitely in the strip of country, some ten miles wide, that lies between the Pamunkey and the upper waters of the Chickahominy. GRANT's line, from Cold Harbor to Atlee's, on the Central Railroad, is fully seven miles in length; while LEE's we judge to be somewhat more contracted. GRANT thus directly faces the rebel capital as well as the rebel army. LEE has planted himself firmly on the north bank of the Chickahominy; and the attacks that have lately been made upon his lines, as well as the assaults that he in turn has made, would seem to indicate that he is prepared either to accept or offer general battle upon his present position.

The battle may be delivered by either side at any hour, but we doubt whether Gen. GRANT has found any fault with its postponement thus far, or would object seriously to its postponement for a few days longer. The outlying rebel forces, being all close at hand, have been enabled to join themselves very promptly to the main army under LEE; but not so with some of the bodies of troops subject to the orders of the Lieutenant-General. Even at this moment, we hear of a splendid body of troops, more than fifteen hundred miles away—in the far South—from his headquarters, hastening forward to his reinforcement; and we hear that another body as great a distance off, in the far north, are reported coming to his aid. Steamboats and railroads are abundant, and move very rapidly, but even then, unfortunately, a good deal of time is consumed in such gigantic movements as these. GRANT, with his present army, has already whipped LEE, and driven him from positions of immense strength; but should he succeed in entering upon a siege of Richmond, he will require a greatly superior force.

In the meantime, everything from the army indicates strength, confidence and success.

The Brains of Criminals.

The doctors and lawyers are every year adding new and curious chapters to the treatises on medical jurisprudence. The number of cases in which insanity is put forward as a justification for crime is increasing so rapidly, both here and in England, that the moral as well as legal responsibility of individuals for their acts, and above all, for their criminal acts, bids fair to disappear altogether. The following curious testimony was given in court in this City, the other day, upon a murder trial which was concluded yesterday:

"A.—The general effects of injuries upon the head relate to injuries to the brain; a man who has received a severe blow on the head, even if the skull be not broken, is more or less stunned; these kinds of injury often produce very serious results upon the mind and the moral condition of the mind.

Q.—Upon slight provocation what would the effect be? A.—The general effects of compression, and by compression I mean the effect upon the brain from a severe blow upon the skull, it affects the action of the brain, sometimes rendering a man irascible, sometimes very irascible; for instance, a man may receive a very severe blow on the head, and recover from the immediate influence, resume his occupation, perhaps, but from some slight cause exciting the brain, irritating a little too much, or becomes excited by anger, or even from indignation; these particular causes may stimulate the brain so as to cause it to act in a very singular way, upsetting the intellectuals and, perhaps, overrunning the judgment.

Q.—How as to domestic difficulty? A.—That comes under the same clause; any moral and physical cause would have that effect.

Q.—What would be the effect a month afterward as power over the will in case of slight provocation? A.—It would render him more irascible; he would lose his head, as it were; his passions would get control of his judgment; these are the general effects not only in my experience, but as laid down by the authorities."

This, put into plain English, means that if a man should receive a smart blow on the head, heavy enough "to stun him more or less," and he should afterward prove irascible, or become excited by anger, indignation or hard drinking, and "his passions should get the control of his judgment," and he should stab or shoot the object of his wrath, we are bound to infer that he is an irresponsible lunatic. A more dangerous doctrine was never propounded in any court of justice, and we should be astonished at it, if anything could astonish us, after the evidence given by the medical witnesses in the great Webster case in Boston. The fact is, that so little is known about the condition of the brain, either in health or disease, and the relations between it and the will are so very obscure, that the opinions of medical men on these points are generally as pure speculation as an inquiry into the origin of evil.

There is hardly a human in this City whose brain may not be fairly presumed to be in an abnormal condition, either from blows, or falls, or excessive use of bad whisky; and if we are to suppose every time he gets into a rage, and knocks somebody down, that it is the result of a morbid condition of the nervous fibre, we shall have to abandon all attempts to punish crime.

Moreover, it will not do to punish criminals who are simply constitutionally "irascible," who have inherited a savage temper—if we let all those escape who can show a scar on their skulls; for whatever difference there may be in the cause of a man's bad temper, there can be no difference in its bearing on the freedom of their will. There are thousands of people, as we all know, whose passions get the control of their judgment "from some slight cause exciting the brain, from drinking a little too much," or from "becoming excited by anger, or even from indignation," whose crania have never received the slightest injury; and yet the seat of the mischief is as undoubtedly in the brain, as if there were a big hole in the top of their heads. In fact, the description given by the Doctor, in the passage we have just quoted, of the condition of a man's temper "who has just received a severe blow on the head," will apply, without a word of alteration, to that very large, and, on the whole, very worthy class of the community known as "bad-tempered people," but whose sanity is never brought into doubt by their excitability.

In short, distinctions in the responsibility, as moral agents, of men who are competent to transact the ordinary business of life, based on doctor's guesses as to the condition of their brain, are such as cannot possibly be noticed in a court of justice without great danger to society, and ought never be noticed without great caution.

It is only at the great and final reckoning that proper allowance can be made for that portion of our sins which may be due to a morbid condition of our physical organization. It is for people who let "their passions get the control of their judgment," from whatever cause, be it drinking, knocks or ignorance, that laws are made, as it is this class that generally commits the crimes; and if we refrain from punishing them until we are able to ascertain the exact condition of their brains, and the precise degree of freedom enjoyed by their will at the moment of their committing a murder or an assault, we may shut up the jails, and leave every man to provide for his own safety.

The Monroe Doctrine—Proposed Repetition of the House Resolutions.

Mr. HENRY WINTER DAVIS has been instructed by the House Committee on Foreign Affairs to report a resolution reaffirming the Monroe doctrine, and maintaining the right of Congress to indicate the policy which the Government should pursue, especially in view of an attempt of foreign Powers to substitute monarchical for republican government on any part of this continent.

Resolutions of the gravity of those which Mr. DAVIS is charged to bring before the House are supposed to have a practical bearing. Their reiteration within the term of one *session must at least be supposed to be justi*fied on some high ground of expediency. Are these conditions met in the announced resolutions? A foreign Power has not only attempted, but has succeeded in subverting a republican government on this continent. What, then, is the policy which Congress claims the right of determining, in view of the situation as it stands? The assertion of the right of control in an emergency which is neither speculative nor remote, but actual, immediate and pressing, is surely at best but an inconsequent legislative act. Does the act lose its inconsequent character by iteration? Does it not rather challenge criticism on the very ground of its impotence? That which leads to nothing must be practically nothing in itself, which is the simple converse of the tritest of maxims, ex nihilo nihil.

But, it may be said, the "right" of Congress in the premises has been contested. Where? When? How? The previous resolutions of the House on the same question are surely not held to be a Congressional act. They constitute, doubtless, a very emphatic expression of the public sentiment of the country. They can neither be overlooked nor treated with indifference; but they form no more a Congressional act than would the unanimous resolutions of the various State Legislatures. Even did expediency invite the Executive to an immediate and positive assertion of non-intervention in American continental affairs, the Executive would be bound to hear the judgment of the Senate before acting upon the separate decision of the House.

The House Committee, however, may justify the iteration of their resolutions on the ground that their full virtue as a mere expression of the current of public sentiment has failed to receive A just recognition at the hands of the Government. To determine the justice of this charge, it is necessary to go beyond the mere fact of the official correspondence with France, although we think that an honest examination even of that will show that the very deepest significance is attached to the former resolutions. The Secretary of State, indeed, presents the resolutions to Mr. DAYTON as "the unanimous sentiment of the people of the United States in regard to Mexico." What different interpretation could Mr. SEWARD have given of them? What higher estimate of their value did the House Committee expect him to form, or the French Government to conceive? It surely cannot be held to detract from the merit thus imputed to the previous action of the House, that Mr. SEWARD explains that the question is one for Executive decision, and cannot be constitutionally determined by the House of Representatives or even by Congress, but by the President of the United States. Was the simple statement of a fact, and implied neither dissent from the conclusions of the House, nor a deficient appreciation of what is frankly stated to be "the unanimous sentiment of the people of the United States."

Wherein, then, lies the expediency of reaffirming what is not disputed? Or what object is served by proclaiming anew an abstract national theory, without a single contingent provision for its practical enforcement? Is it not enough, in the absence of any such provision, that "the President receives the declaration of the House of Representatives with the profound respect to which it is entitled, as the expression of its views upon a grave and important subject?" Or is it deemed essential to the dignity of the House—in addition to this—that the world should be apprised anew, that it is supposed to therein where it is unprepared to act, and that while compelled practically to bow to the practical motives which govern the foreign policy of the Government, it is weak enough to make that policy the subject of ill-timed debate and inconclusive resolutions?

It is for the House itself to judge, when Mr. DAVIS' resolutions come before it, how these questions shall be answered. It is the sole judge of its own dignity, and we should hope its action will show that it places an estimate thereon sufficiently high to approach a question so grave and so delicate, aside from passion or partisan feeling.

LOYAL MEETING TO-DAY.—The meeting to be held in Union-square this afternoon, though prompted largely by the desire to do honor to Lieut.-Gen. GRANT, is intended mainly to testify the steady and uncompromising devotion of the people of this City to the cause of the Union, and their determined purpose to prosecute the war until the rebellion has been thoroughly and finally quelled.

It is understood that President LINCOLN has written a letter to the meeting, expressing the warmest sympathy with its objects, and the most cordial recognition of the merits and services of Gen. GRANT. It is expected also that Gen. SCOTT will preside.

The programme of proceedings will be found elsewhere, including the names of, several distinguished gentlemen who will be present and address the meeting.

A NEW ARCTIC EXPEDITION.—The card addressed to the public, on behalf of Capt. C. F. HALL, which we publish to-day, will elicit attention alike in consideration of the importance of the subject, the fame which the courage and endurance of the explorer has won for him, and the unquestioned standing and influence of the gentlemen who have undertaken to speak to the public in behalf of his enterprise. The narrative of Capt. HALL's previous explorations (shortly to be issued by the Messrs. HARPER) has engaged his time and energy for many months. But he is now free to renew his labors as an explorer in the Arctic seas, so soon as the cooperation of those interested in the enterprise shall insure the proper outfit of the expedition.

THE NEW LINE OF STEAMERS FROM HAVRE.—We publish in our advertising columns this morning the prospectus of the new line of steamers which is soon to commence running between this port and Havre. The Washington, the pioneer vessel of the line, will leave Havre on June 15, and her return trip will be made, leaving this port on her return trip July 6. Her tonnage is 3,400 tons (old builders' measurement.) She is 350 feet in length, 45 feet beam, 33 feet in depth, and on her trial-trip in the Clyde she made 15½ knots per hour. The Washington and her consorts will all be under the command of able and experienced masters, and the managers of the line design to take special pains to secure the comfort of such cabin passengers as may prefer the route by Antwerp in the advertisement. Notwithstanding the number of steamers plying between this City and the different European ports, their united capacity is insufficient to accommodate the immense number of immigrants now pushing hither. This fact alone insures the success of the new line, and the favorable situation under which it starts makes it certain that it will soon become an established institution.

INSTITUTE FOR ARMY NURSES.—Dr. RAPHAEL, Professor of Surgery in the Thirteenth-street Medical College, delivered an exceedingly interesting lecture last evening before the Ladies National Relief Association, No. 1 Clinton Hall. The principal object of these lectures, which are given by distinguished Surgeons every Tuesday and Friday evenings, is the instruction of army nurses in some of the duties of their calling, so that they may make these nurses, provide homes for them while in the City, and send them to the field, the camps, and the hospitals. The subject of the lecture last evening was "Gunshot Wounds," and it was treated by the learned surgeon in a practical manner, and in a style well adapted to an audience that had been known to lack of the technicalities of surgery. In the course of his lecture the Professor had then the different kinds of improved fire-arms now in use rendered gunshot wounds received during the present war more severe than any destructive than formerly. The remarks of Dr. RAPHAEL were listened to with great attention, and the ladies present in great number had to appreciate the benefits of these lectures when they enter the Army Hospitals, and undertake the care of wounded soldiers.

The Loyal Meeting this Evening.

This demonstration of public sentiment in regard to the war, the services of the Union armies and the gratitude due to Gen. GRANT officers and men, will take place at the southern terminus of Union-square, at 6 o'clock.

The Speakers who have been invited to be present, and the speakers who have consented to address the assemblage, are requested to meet the Committee of Arrangements at the Maison Dorée, on Fourth-street, opposite the square, at 4½ P. M.

A national salute will be fired in the square at 6 o'clock.

The stands will be decorated with elegant banners bearing portraits of distinguished Generals carrying water from GRANT and SHERMAN, with appropriate expressions of their claims to public gratitude.

Washington's Monument will be draped with the national flag, and with emblems of mourning for Sherman and Wadsworth.

A letter will be read from President LINCOLN, in response to an invitation to be present.

An assemblage of musicians, with a military band in attendance, will be stationed on the south side of the square, and patriotic airs will be fired during the evening.

Calcium lights will be provided, to enable speakers to continue their addresses in the evening.

It is respectfully requested that the national flag may be displayed on public buildings and private residences during the day and evening.

The following gentlemen have consented to address the assembly:

Hon. JAS. T. BRADY.	Hon. JOHN A. BRADY.
Hon. GEORGE OPDYKE.	Hon. GILBERT DEAN.
Hon. CHARLES P. DALY.	EDWARD BICKERDOR.
Hon. WM. H. BOOKA.	SHERVILLE A. BARNES.
Rev. E. H. GARVIN.	MAGNUS GROSS.
Hon. R. S. COWDIN.	Hon. ELIJAH NORTON.

Gentlemen who have been invited, whose names, if they consent to be published, will be published in the evening papers.

By order of the committee.

NATHL. JARVIS, Jr., Secretary.

A FEW DISCOVERIES!
For several months past there has been, in certain circles in the City of New-York, a secret whisper circulated, and the same could be traced to various quarters, that a few capitalists, determined to speculate out of the necessities of the public, were making a clean sweep of all the Corsets, and consequently finally cut the price of Corsets up, and consequently finally cut the price of Corsets up. Now, we have only to say, that we have not sold our Corsets at any advance, and we shall not do so, and we have on hand a large assortment of Corsets, which we will sell at the same low prices that we have always sold them at, viz.:

THE GOVERNMENT LOAN
$500,000,000.
THIS LOAN IS AUTHORIZED by act of Congress of March 3, 1863, which provides for its REDEMPTION IN COIN, at any period not less than ten or more than forty years from its date, at the pleasure of the Government.
UNTIL ITS REDEMPTION, five per cent. interest is to be paid semi-annually, IN COIN.
SUBSCRIPTIONS TO THE LOAN are received by the National Banks in United States notes, or in such currency or other funds as are taken by them on deposit at par.
ITS EXEMPTION FROM STATE OR LOCAL TAXATION adds from one to three per cent. per annum to its value.
THE RATE OF INTEREST on this loan, although but five per cent. in coin, is as much greater in currency as the difference between the market value of currency and gold.
AS A RULE, the five per cent. specie securities of all solvent Governments are always at par or above, and currency now funded in the National Loan will be worth its face in gold, besides paying a regular and liberal per centage to the holder.
THE AUTHORIZED AMOUNT of this loan is two Hundred Million Dollars. The amount of subscriptions reported to the Treasury at Washington, during April and May, has been over $66,000,000,
SUBSCRIPTIONS WILL BE RECEIVED by the Treasurer of the United States at Washington, and the Assistant Treasurers at New-York, Boston and Philadelphia, and by the First National Bank of New-York, No. 4 Wall-st.
Second National Bank of New-York, 264 Broadway.

LAW REPORTS.

Parent and Child—The Father to Have the Custody of His Child Against the Will of the Child—A Rare Rule.

SUPREME COURT—CHAMBERS.

Before Justice J. F. Barnard.

The People ex rel. Ambrose O'Niel vs. John Kelly.—This was the return to a writ of habeas corpus by means of which the relator sought to regain the custody of Mary O'Niel, his infant daughter, a little girl of eleven years. The respondent in his return developed the point and set forth that her mother was dead; that he being her uncle had taken her when she was five years old and had kept her and had provided for her ever since; that the child's father had since remarried, and the girl did not wish to go to her step-mother's; that he was willing to keep her and provide for her, as one of his own children; and that he and his wife were much attached to her. Although it did not appear that the child was detained against her will, his Honor said that unless something was shown against the character of the father, or that he was unable to provide for his children, he was entitled to the custody of his daughter, and it must be ordered accordingly.

When the parties left the court-room the child was clinging bitterly at the prospect of leaving her uncle.

Mr. McDermott for respondent; James M. Smith for relator.

Guilty and to Review Proceedings in a Felon Case—A Conviction for Wife Abandonment.

SUPREME COURT—CHAMBERS.

Before Justice J. F. Barnard.

The People ex rel. Michael D. Ryan vs. Edward Slegel, Police Justice, &c.—The relator in this case was convicted before Police Justice Slegel of being a disorderly person, and abandoning his wife. Application was made to Judge Cardozo for a writ of certiorari, but this Honor decided that he had no power to act in the matter. The writ was subsequently granted upon application to the Supreme Court, General Term, and an order obtained admitting Ryan to bail pending the proceedings to review the conviction in the Police Court. Yesterday the prisoner found bail in the sum of $500, and was discharged.

E. F. B. Ryan, for relator; Orlando F. Stewart, for people.

Writs Admitted.

SURROGATE'S COURT.

Before Surrogate Tucker.

Wills of the following-named persons have been admitted to probate during the week past: Geraldine Lyle, Joseph Roberts, John Buck, Jacob Wingrove, Lambert Sullivan, Catharine A. Clark, Louis Martin, Augustus F. Shotwell, Wm. W. George, Felix Park Park. The charitable bequests in Mr. Payne's will have been published before. The others contain nothing of interest to the public.

Decisions.

SUPREME COURT—CHAMBERS.

Before Justice J. F. Barnard.

Hamilton vs. Collins.—Motion denied with $10 costs.

Carman vs. Jones.—I think there is no sufficient bail for a charge of over $50.

The Figueroa vs. Young.—Costs fixed at $25.

THE GLENN'S FALLS FIRE.—Further particulars of the great fire at Glenn's Falls have come to hand. All the central portion of the business part of the place were destroyed; all the churches except two, both banks, the post-office, telegraph-office, printing-office, all the dry goods, grocery, clothing, hardware, boots and numerous dwellings. Total number of buildings destroyed, 100. The loss is estimated at from $600,000 to $800,000, and the insurance about $300,000. The sufferers at the hotels generally saved their effects. The principal losses are: Glen's Falls Hotel, $35,000, insured $15,000; George W. Slocum, $60,000, insured $18,000; Charles Rice, $20,000, insured $12,000; D. H. Cowen & Co., $30,000, insured $11,000; Judge Rensselaer, $1,500, no insurance; Glenn's Falls Bank, $6,000, insured $4,000; Lucius Sloan, $4,000, insured $3,000; Brown & Sherman, $3,000, insured $2,000; Amos Ashall, $10,000, insured $6,000; no insurance on Monument, or Universalist Churches; $5,000 insurance on Presbyterian Church of Glen, $15,000, insured $6,000; Ashley, $10,000, no insurance; Rev. A. D. Kenneth, $4,000, insured $1,000. In proportion to the size of the place this is certainly the most disastrous fire that has occurred this side of California. The villages presents a scene of desolation. The firemen from the neighboring villages of Fort Edward and Sandy Hill rallied promptly to the aid of the burning town, and afforded great assistance in saving the property of the Sanger-Allaire Argus. NEW SKIRT FOR 1864.

A NEW AND GREAT INVENTION IN THE DUPLEX ELLIPTIC (OR DOUBLE) STEEL SPRING.

J. I. & J. G. WEST, NO. 97 CHAMBERS-ST., NEW-YORK,

Are the owners of the patent and exclusive manufacturers of this.

J. W. BRADLEY'S PATENTED DUPLEX ELLIPTIC STEEL SPRING SKIRTS.

This Situation consists of Duplex (or two) Elliptic Steel Springs, ingeniously braided tightly and firmly together, edge to edge, combining the lightness, most elastic, flexible and durable spring ever used, enabling the wearer, in contradiction of the great elasticity and flexibility, to place and fold the skirt when in use as easily and with the same convenience as a silk or muslin dress. It entirely obviates and removes the only objections to hoop skirts, viz.: the inconvenience they occasion on the public, especially in crowded assemblies, carriages, railroad cars, church pews, or in any crowded place from the difficulty of contracting them by occupying a small space. This entirely removes the difficulty, while giving the skirt the usual full and symmetrical form, and is the lightest and most stylish and graceful improvement for the street, opera, promenade or home dress. A lady having enjoyed the pleasure, comfort and great convenience of wearing the Duplex Elliptic Spring Skirt for a single day, will never afterward willingly dispense with the use of them. They are the best quality in every part, and by far the lightest, most durable, comfortable and economical skirt made. Merchants will be supplied at shows and ladies in most first-class retail stores in this City and throughout the different States.

PROPOSALS.

PROPOSALS FOR $500,000 VOLUNTEER SOLDIERS' FAMILY AID FUND BONDS, NO. 4.

Sealed proposals will be received at the Comptroller's Office, until Saturday, the 11th day of June, 1864, at two o'clock P. M., when the same will be publicly opened, for the purchase of the whole or any part of the sum of Five Hundred Thousand Dollars of the "Volunteer Soldiers' Family Aid Fund Bonds, No. 4," authorized by an Ordinance of the Corporation, passed May 24, 1864, and an Act of the Legislature of the State of New-York, passed March 8, 1862.

The said bonds will bear interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, on the first day of May and November in each year, and the principal will be redeemed Nov. 1, 1872.

The Ordinance will state the amount of bonds desired, and the price per one hundred dollars thereof, and the persons whose proposals are accepted will thereupon be required to deposit with the Chamberlain of the City (at the Broadway Bank) the sums awarded to them respectively.

On presentation to the Comptroller, the receipts of the Chamberlain for such deposits, the parties will be entitled to receive bonds for equal amounts of the par value thereof, bearing interest from the dates of payments.

Sealed proposals should be sealed and indorsed "Proposals for Volunteer Soldiers' Family Aid Fund Bonds, No. 4," and inclosed in a second envelope, addressed to the Comptroller.

The right is reserved to reject any or all of the bids if the interests of the Corporation require it.

MATTHEW T. BRENNAN, Comptroller.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON.

Special Dispatches to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Friday, June 3.

GEN. GRANT'S WRITING ON HIS OWN SITUATION.

A gentleman from the front tells the following good story of Gen. GRANT: A visitor in the army called upon him, one morning, and found the General sitting in his tent smoking and talking to one of his staff officers. The stranger approached the officers and inquired of him as follows: "Gentlemen, if you think Lee and get between him and Richmond, will you not uncover Washington and leave it a prey to the enemy?" Gen. GRANT, throwing a cloud of smoke from his mouth, indifferently replied, "Yes, I reckon so." The stranger, being taken by a reply, propounded question number two: "General do you not think Lee can detach sufficient force from his army to reinforce Beauregard and overwhelm Butler?" "Not a doubt of it," replied the General. Becoming fortified by his success, the stranger propounded question No. 3, as follows: "General, if there is no danger that Jonnson may come up and reinforce Lee, so that the latter will swing round and cut off your communications, and seize your supplies?" "Very likely," was the cool reply of the General, and he knocked the ashes from the end of his cigar. The stranger, horrified at the awful fate about to befall Gen. GRANT and his army, made his exit, and hastened to Washington to communicate the news.

THE NEW TARIFF BILL.

The Ways and Means Committee were hard again to-day by delegations of merchants and specu-[illegible] interested in the pending Tariff Bill. With a politeness which no other committee would exercise, they listened for several hours to their plaintive appeals. Although all delegations will be respectfully heard to, it is doubtful whether any representations, or appeals they can make will have any effect on the committee, who are determined that the new Tariff Bill shall produce a revenue commensurate with the expenses of the Government. To-morrow a New-York delegation, representing the silk interests, will have mercy at the hands of the committee.

THE OUTRAGES IN THE JAMES RIVER.

The accounts published yesterday in the correspondence of the Associated Press from Fortress Monroe, of an attack on our gunboats in the James River by a rebel iron-clad, is undoubtedly a hoax. Admiral Lee, in his dispatches dated one day subsequently to the alleged fight, mentions nothing of the kind. It is known to the Navy Department that the rebels have iron-clads, torpedo-rafts and other infernal machines to be sent down against our gunboats. But our naval officers are well prepared for them, and there is no fear of the results.

PAY OF SOLDIERS.

The House Military Committee, at its session to-day, took up the House bill as amended by the Senate equalizing the pay of soldiers. Most of the Senate amendments were agreed to, including that establishing a new bureau in the War Department, to be called the bureau of Military Justice. The bill provides that the chief of the bureau shall have the rank and pay of a Brigadier-General. The committee also agreed to fix the pay of Paymasters' clerks at $2,000 per annum and rations.

ARRIVAL OF THE NEW-YORK REPORT.

The steamer Report arrived here this afternoon, having left White House at noon yesterday. Personal advices speak up so far since that heavy demonstrating was heard there when they left, indicating that an engagement was in progress.

THE SIXTH CORPS AT WORK.

A civilian who came in from the front, to White House, reported that the Sixth Corps was engaged, having brought an engagement on by a rapid and sudden movement from left to right. Several regiments of negro troops, doubtless a portion of Butler's forces, were being landed at White House when the steamer left. The hospital steamer Connecticut was engaged in taking on wounded that had been brought down from the front, but she had not received a sufficient number to warrant her sailing. The troops were enthusiastic, and felt confident of defeating Lee and marching triumphantly into Richmond.

BALTIMORE CONVENTION.

Delegates to the Baltimore Convention are arriving here in considerable numbers.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

A meeting will soon be called by the Copperhead members of Congress, to discuss the propriety of a change of time, and probably of the place, fixed for the holding of the so-called National Democratic Convention.

CLAIMS FOR PRIZE MONEY.

During the month of May there were settled at the Fourth Auditor's office twenty-six hundred and twenty-eight claims for prize money, amounting to nearly half a million dollars. New lists for distribution, amounting to $772,489, were received during the same time.

DEATHS OF SOLDIERS.

The following New-York soldiers died in hospital yesterday:

Private Newton, Co. H, 63d New-York.
Corp. Annesley C. Longworth, Co. D, 165th N. Y.
Abel Wait, Co. F, 63 New-York.
Geo. D. Burtis, enlister, Co. I, 84th New-York.
Oliver M. West, Co. K, 2d N. Y., heavy artillery.
Peter Cutler, Co. H, 7th New-York.
John P. Cogan, Co. K, 2d N. Y., heavy art.
Geo. Seymour Harris, Co. F, 8th N. Y., heavy art.
Patrick Connor, Co. E, 84th New-York.
Hugh Lockwood, Co. D, 165th New-York.
Samuel Sisty, Co. H, 44th New-York.
Geo. Winchel, Co. D, 14th N. Y., heavy art.
Chas. Lovett, Co. C, 14th New-York, heavy art.
Herman H. Fowler, Co. E, 77th New-York.
Levi Kinkleiter, Co. G, 2d N. Y., mounted rifles.
Oscar Carey, Co. B, 20th New-York.
Sergeant John G. Ealand, Co. F, 7th New-York, heavy artillery.

PERSONAL.

Brig.-Gen. BARNARD, of the Engineer Corps, left for the front this morning.

Dispatches to the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Friday, June 3.

THE M'DOWELL MILITARY COMMISSION.

The report of the Military Commission, presided over by Major-Gen. Irvin McDowell, and charged with the examination into alleged frauds in the Western Department, was transmitted by the Secretary of War to the Senate at this evening's session, in response mainly to resolutions in relation, covering a considerable period of time. The court proceeded to inquire as to what officers were concerned in traffic in cotton or speculation, and under what circumstances. Gen. E. R. S. Canby, in the case of the seizure of the rebel Gen. Pillow, was found guilty of connivance and permission in supplies to contrabands. Though it was not shown specifically how all the supplies were supplied. In the case of Hurlburut and Wilkinson, cotton, it was ascertained on account SMA. The whole matter was fully considered, the amounts thus paid, were received for it while at occasions was paid, premium and currency paid over to the chief. Two hundred and eight bales seized from Mars. Wade, in Arkansas, and sold to Holmes, was afterward purchased at 12½ cents, and the proceeds paid to Mrs. Wade. Maj. H. S. Greene, Maj. McKinney and Lieut. Gillen, of Gen. Grant's staff, it was ascertained, were interested, in the purchase of 181 bales of cotton.

Brig.-Gen. Henry was exonerated from the charge of knowingly returning fifteen negroes to Slavery, but was found to be connected with the traffic in cotton.

Col. Stokes, of the Fortieth regiment, was found to have traded in cotton and to have received silver-ware from Mrs. Cossman, in the Mississippi, who complained that it was not all returned.

Lieut. Kimball, of the Second Wisconsin Cavalry, stole a diamond pin, which was subsequently returned.

Maj. Warner, Twenty-fourth Missouri, received $500 for furnishing a guard for protecting cotton.

Maj. Hyde, U. Whitney, Assistant Quartermaster, was found interested in cotton in a manner and contrary to the army regulations, and of depositing the proceeds in a private banking institution, in violation of the Treasury of the United States.

Capt. Rowland, of the 20th, ordered to Chicago by Gen. Hahan, was authorized to receive half the net proceeds, and $2,000.

Among others interested in cotton speculations were Col. C. C. Marsh and Capt. Hooker, 6th Illinois; Lieut.-Col. S. N. Wood, 6th Missouri Cavalry (who admitted having made $40,000); Dr. Rozeny, 33d Illinois; Capt. Jerome Bradley, Assistant Quartermaster General; Capt. Robert Garman, (half profits on 202 bales, $8,500,) Capt Hayden and Lieut. Wright, 2d Iowa Battery; Lieut. Baxer, 33d Illinois; Lieut. Flint, 10th Missouri Cavalry; and Lieut. Murdock, 19th Ohio Battery.

Pardons were shown to have been granted for cotton trading by Gens. GRANT, CURTIS, BANKS, GORMAN and WASHBURNE; and in the third place, that transportation had been furnished to some extent for private purposes, for which remuneration was not always received.

MONEY WANTED.

In order to secure the greatest possible vigor in the operations of the armies now moving against the insurgents, under brave and skillful generals, upon a vast theatre of operations, expenditures have been increased beyond receipts from the revenue and ordinary subscriptions to the National Loan. Therefore the Secretary of the Treasury has advertised for sealed offers to be received at the department under the act of March 3, 1863, until the hour of Thursday, June 23, 1864, for bonds of the United States to the amount of $75,000,000, bearing an annual interest of six per centum, payable semi-annually in coin on the first days of July and January each year, and redeemable after the 20th of June 1881. It is required that each offer must be for $50 or $100, or some multiple of one hundred, and must state the sum offered for each $100 in bonds, or for $50, when the offer is for no more than $500. Two per cent. of the principle, excluding the premiums of the whole amount offered, must be deposited with Treasurer of the United States at Washington, or with the Assistant Treasurer at New-York, Boston, Philadelphia, or St. Louis, or with the designated depositories at Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Louisville, Chicago, Detroit or Buffalo, or with any national banking association authorized to receive deposits which may consent to transact the business without charge. Certificates in duplicate of depositors will be issued to depositors by the officer or association receiving them, the originals of which must be forwarded with the offers to the department. All deposits should be made in time for advice of offers with certainty to reach Washington not later than the morning of June 16. No offer not accompanied by its proper certificate of deposit will be considered. The coupon and registered bonds issued will be of the denominations of $50, $100, $500 and $1,000. Registered bonds of $5,000 and $10,000 will also be issued, if required. All offers received will be opened on the 16th of June by the Secretary or one of the Assistant Secretaries, and notice of acceptance or declination will be immediately given to the respective officers, and in case of acceptance on the final payment of installments of bonds of the descriptions and denominations preferred will be sent to the subscribers at the cost of the department. The original deposit will be reckoned in the last installment paid by the successful officers, and will be immediately returned to those whose offers may not be accepted.

The amount of accepted offers must be deposited with the Treasurer or other officer, or association authorized to act under this notice on advice of acceptance of offer, or as follows: One-third on or before the 20th; one-third on or before the 24th; and the balance which will include the premium and the original two per cent. deposit; on or before the 30th of June. Interest to the 1st of July on the several deposits, will be paid in coin on the 30th of June, and interest on the bonds will begin July 1, 1864. Offers under this notice should be indorsed "Offer for Loan," and addressed to the Secretary of the Treasury. The right to decline all offers not considered advantageous, is reserved to the Government.

PROVOST-MARSHAL OF WASHINGTON.

Capt. J. C. PUTNAM, of the First Regiment Veteran Reserve Corps, Chief of the Military Detectives and Patrols at headquarters of the Military District of Washington, has been appointed Provost-Marshal of the District of Columbia, in place of Capt. HENRY A. SCHEIBE, removed.

TEN-FORTY LOAN.

The subscriptions to the ten-forty loan, to-day, amounted to $1,200,000.

THE BANK BILL SIGNED.

The National Bank Bill has been signed by the President.

THE BALTIMORE CONVENTION.

Delegates to the Baltimore Convention are arriving here in considerable numbers.

REBEL INFERNAL MACHINES.

It is known to the Navy Department that the rebels have iron-clads, torpedo-rafts, and other infernal machines, which they intend to send down the James River against our gunboats. But our naval officers are well prepared for them, and there is no fear of the result.

PROCEEDINGS OF CONGRESS.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, Friday, June 3.

NAVY-YARD AT NEW-LONDON.

Mr. MORGAN, of New-York, (Union,) presented a memorial from the New-York Chamber of Commerce in favor of the bill establishing a navy yard at New-London, Conn.

PRINTING THE NATIONAL BANK BILL.

Mr. ANTHONY, of Rhode Island, (Union,) from the Committee on Printing, reported a resolution for printing 2,000 extra copies of the National Bank Bill, which is now a law. Adopted.

POTOMAC FERRY COMPANY.

Mr. MORRILL, of Maine, (Union,) introduced a bill to incorporate the Potomac Ferry Company, which was referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

THE USE OF LIQUOR IN THE ARMY.

Mr. WILSON, of Massachusetts, (Union,) presented a petition setting forth that a great many disasters in our army result from the use of intoxicating drinks, and asking for some remedy from Congress. Laid on the table.

RELIEF FOR THE STATE OF WISCONSIN.

The bill to pay the State of Wisconsin five per cent. on the sales of her reserved lands was taken up and discussed until the expiration of the morning hour, without result.

COMMERCE BETWEEN THE ATLANTIC AND PACIFIC.

Mr. HOWARD, of Michigan, (Union,) from the Committee on Commerce, reported back the bill to amend the act to facilitate commerce between the Atlantic and Pacific States, by telegraph or otherwise, with an amendment.

THE TAX BILL.

The consideration of the Internal Revenue Bill was then resumed as in Committee of the Whole.

Mr. HOWE offered various amendments relative to the machinery of the bill which were adopted. They strike out the second and sixth sections, the latter section providing for the appointment of a Cashier of Internal Revenue at $2,500 per annum. One of the amendments also increases the penalty for sending in a false account, refusing to appear and produce books, &c., upon exhibition thereof of a court, from $1,000 to $100,000 fine, and imprisonment confinement of six months. Any neglect of duty or knowingly false return or valuation by an assessor or assistant assessor, is liable to the same increased penalty.

Various amendments of Mr. HOWE were adopted to the different sections of the bill, the effect of which is to place all the proceeds from the internal revenue directly under the Secretary of the Treasury instead of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

Mr. CLARK, of New-Hampshire, (Union,) moved the following amendments, which were adopted:

On cigarettes made of tobacco, inclosed in a paper wrapper, valued at not over $7 per 100 packages, and each containing not more than twenty-five cigarettes, $1 per 100 packages.

On cigarettes made wholly of tobacco, and also on those known as cheroots or short sizes, valued in each case at not over $6 per 1,000, $3 per 1,000.

On cigars valued at over $6 and not over $15 per 1,000, $5 per 1,000.

On cigars valued at over $15 and not over $30 per 1,000, $10 per 1,000.

On cigars valued at over $30 and not over $45 per 1,000, $15 per 1,000.

On cigars valued at over $45, $20 per thousand.

The valuation of cigars herein mentioned shall, in all cases, be the value of the cigars exclusive of the tax, and every cigar maker, before making any cigars, shall procure a permit authorizing him to carry on his trade, for which he shall pay fifty cents, and also procure thereon the indorsement of the Assistant Assessor of his district, paying ten cents therefor. Every person making cigars shall keep an account of the cigars made by him, their kind and quality, and for whom and where made, and shall deliver to the Assistant Assessor a sworn account, verified by oath. The penalty for the violation of this act is as the tenth act, or imprisonment not exceeding thirty days on any one conviction. The penalty for a false return is $100, with the same imprisonment.

An amendment of Mr. CHANDLER was adopted which raises the tax on chewing tobacco, cavendish, plug, twist and manufactured tobacco of all descriptions from which the stems have been taken from 25 to 40 cents, by a vote of 19 against 14.

Mr. HARRIS, of New-York, (Union,) moved to reconsider the vote by which the amendment was adopted.

Considerable debate ensued upon the motion, pending which the Senate, at 4:30 P. M., took a recess until 7 o'clock.

EVENING SESSION.

PREVENTION OF COUNTERFEITING.

Mr. VAN WINKLE, of Western Virginia, (Union,) called up the bill to prevent the counterfeiting of the coin of the United States, and it was passed.

THE TAX BILL.

The consideration of the Tax Bill was resumed, the question being on the motion of Mr. FESSENDEN to reconsider the vote by which the tax on chewing tobacco was raised from 25 to 40 cents.

The motion was carried, and the original question recurring, the tax of 25 cents was retained.

Mr. CHANDLER moved to amend the Senate's amendment, taxing fine cut tobacco in bulk, packages, paper, &c., 40 cents and insert 35 cents per pound. This was agreed to by 22 to 9.

Mr. WILSON moved an amendment increasing the tax on whisky to $1 50 from July to October, 1864, $1 50 from October, 1864, to January, 1865, and to $2 per gallon thereafter.

Mr. WILSON's amendments were rejected by 11 yeas against 31 nays.

Mr. HENDRICKS moved an amendment providing from the 1st day of July, 1864, to the 1st day of July, 1865, the tax on spirits shall be $1, and from that time $1 50.

Mr. HENDRICKS contended that the proposed tax was an onerous and oppressive tax upon the corn-growing regions of the West, where the people were unable to get their grain to market except in the form of whisky.

The amendment was rejected by a vote of 10 to 21.

The Senate at 10 o'clock adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WASHINGTON, Friday, June 3.

MILEAGE AND SALARY TO CONTESTANTS.

Mr. DAWES, of Massachusetts, (Union,) from the Committee on Elections, reported a resolution allowing mileage and salary to Mr. McHENRY, of Kentucky, and Mr. BIRCH, of Missouri, who contested the seats of Messrs. YEAMAN and KNAPP to the House. The House decided the question.

On motion of Mr. WASHBURNE, of Illinois, (Union,) the resolution was tabled—66 against 60.

INSPECTORS OF STEAMBOATS.

Mr. WASHBURNE, of Illinois, made a report from the Committee of Conference on the bill creating an additional inspector of steamboats in the Memphis collection district, which was concurred in. It brings the smaller classes of vessels under the steamboat law.

APPROPRIATIONS FOR CIVIL EXPENDITURES.

Mr. STEVENS, of Pennsylvania, (Union,) from the Committee of Ways and Means, reported a bill making appropriations for sundry civil expenditures, the consideration of which was postponed until next Wednesday.

LAND AID TO MICHIGAN RAILROADS.

The House passed the Senate bill amendatory of the law granting alternate sections of land to Michigan to aid in the construction of certain railroads.

ADJOURNMENT.

Mr. BRIDE, of Kentucky, (Union,) asked, but failed to obtain consent to introduce a joint resolution for adjournment till Monday, the 13th inst.

THE TARIFF BILL.

On motion of Mr. MORRILL, of Vermont, (Union,) all general debate on the Tariff was ordered to cease in one minute.

The House went into Committee on that subject.

The following amendments were made:

Molasses, from sugar cane, eight cents instead of twelve cents, per gallon.

All parts of the bill to take effect on the 1st of July, instead of from and after passage.

One of the provisions of the liquor section was amended to read as follows: "That all importations of brandy or spirits, or of wines imported by any name whatever, shall be subject to the highest rate of duty provided for the genuine article respectively intended to be represented, and in no case less than one dollar per gallon.

JAMES C. ALLEN, of Illinois, (Dem.,) moved to reduce the duty on wood screws, and spoke of a bonus which was thus to be given to a monopoly.

Mr. MORRILL, of Vermont, (Union,) explained that no higher duty than is at present paid is designated on these articles, and said the patent is near its expiration.

Mr. ALLEN's amendment was rejected.

Unsuccessful efforts were made to amend the duties on wires and iron.

Mr. WRIGHT, of New-York, (Dem.,) moved to reduce bituminous coal and shale to $1 per ton. Disagreed to.

Mr. F. WOOD, of New-York, (Dem.,) offered an amendment, taxing indigo, dye-woods and madder, thirty per centum ad valorem. As the cotton manufacturers use these articles free from tax, he proposed by this motion to add several millions per annum to the revenue.

Mr. MORRILL said this amendment came from a quarter which would strike down every manufacturing interest and should not be adopted.

The amendment was rejected.

The proviso of the wool tax section was amended so as to read, that wool, which shall be increased in value by being scoured or cleansed, shall pay in addition to the duties herein provided, double the amount of such duties.

Mr. BARRETT, of New-York, (Dem.,) moved to reduce the tariff on tapestry carpets to 45 cents per square yard. Fifty-five, as proposed, will prohibit importations. The manufacture in this country is in the hands of two or three manufacturers.

Mr. MORRILL replied that, up to a recent period, the American manufacturers did not make a dollar. The sum proposed by the bill was about right.

Mr. BARRETT's amendment was rejected.

Amendments were made as follows:

On all manufactures of wool, 24 cents per pound, with 35 per centum ad valorem.

On flannels uncolored, valued at 30 cents or less per square yard, 16 cents per pound, with 30 per centum ad valorem; valued above 30 cents per square yard, and on all flannels colored, printed or plaided, not otherwise provided for, and flannels composed in part of cotton, 24 cents per pound, with 35 per centum ad valorem; on flannels composed in part of silk, 50 per centum ad valorem.

On hats of wool, 24 cents per pound, with 35 per centum ad valorem.

Woolens and worsted yarns, valued at over $1 per pound, 24 cents per pound, with 30 per centum ad valorem.

Ready-made clothing and wearing apparel of every description, wholly or in part of wool, manufactured wholly or in part by fulling or felting, (except hosiery,) 24 cents per pound, with 40 per centum ad valorem.

Balmorals and goods of similar description, 24 cents per pound, with 35 per centum ad valorem.

On all manufactures not otherwise provided for, and ladies dress composed wholly or in part of wool, worsted, mohair or goats hair, gray or uncolored, not exceeding in value 40 cents per square yard, 4 cents per square yard, with 35 per centum ad valorem; exceeding in value 40 cents, 6 cents per square yard, with 35 per centum ad valorem.

Mr. RICHARD WARD, of New-York, (Dem.,) offered a proviso, that no cotton goods in the piece, of any description, whether bleached, printed, unprinted, colored or stained, shall pay a higher rate than equal to 40 per centum ad valorem.

Mr. MORRILL said that Congress has imposed 3 cents per pound on raw or manufactured cotton, and 4 per centum, ad valorem. Our manufacturers have to compete with other countries where there are no such duties. The amendment was rejected.

Mr. HOLMAN, of Indiana, (Dem.,) moved to reduce the duty on unbleached cottons from 2 to 3 cents per square yard, maintaining that the taxes should fall on the wealth and not on the labor of the country.

Mr. MORRILL replied, when the amendment was rejected.

Mr. HOLMAN, moved to increase the duty on silks and velvets from 40 to 100 per centum ad valorem. Such luxuries should be taxed. If there be silk and velvet looms over New England, we should hear different arguments from the other side. A poor man's shirt was taxed 40 per cent., and yet luxuries were comparatively taxed to a less amount.

Mr. MORRILL expressed his surprise that the gentleman should have thus spoken, considering that he voted to reduce the duty on tapestry carpets used by the wealthy. They had provided a specific duty on some kinds of cotton goods, and on others 35 per centum ad valorem, and as to silk dress goods, 40 per centum ad valorem, being a higher rate than ever before imposed.

The amendment was rejected.

At 4:30 the House took a recess till 7:30.

EVENING SESSION.

CHICAGO MARINE HOSPITAL.

Mr. WASHBURNE, of Illinois, (Union,) from the Committee on Commerce, reported a bill, which was passed, authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to sell the Marine Hospital and grounds at Chicago, and with the proceeds of such sale purchase a more healthy and retired location.

THE BANKRUPT BILL.

The House proceeded to consider the Bankrupt Bill.

Mr. STARKWEATHER, of Ohio, (Union,) said the Select Committee on the subject had prepared a bill as perfect as could be devised under the circumstances, and it was called for by the best interests of the country.

Mr. ELIJAH WARD, of New-York, (Dem.,) expressed the hope that this Congress would have the honor, as well as the credit of passing this bill, in order to relieve so many from bondage. A message of this kind was more needed in this country, where there were so many money speculators, than in the Old World, where changes of trade are less common. In the course of his remarks he mentioned the fact that in 1861 the indebtedness of the Southern States was estimated at three hundred millions of dollars, of which over one hundred and fifty-nine millions were due to New-York, twenty-four millions to Philadelphia, nineteen millions to Baltimore, and seventeen millions to Boston. This had produced bankruptcy which would not otherwise have occurred. The bill now before the House would be beneficial to the creditor and the debtor interest. It would be a stigma on the age if a measure of this character should not be passed. None could afford more relief and satisfaction.

Mr. GARFIELD, of Ohio, (Union,) said this was few most important measures ever brought before the House, apart from those immediately connected with the conduct of the war. He was surprised that a bill of seventy pages, and most sweeping in its character, intended to be permanent, and affecting the interest of every man, was attempted to be pressed through this House under the previous question, and when only about seventy minutes had been occupied in its consideration. The gentleman (WARD) had mentioned that the South were indebted to the amount of three hundred millions. He was unwilling that the records, when brought back to the Union, should take advantage of the bill.

Mr. STRAUSBURG, of Ohio, asked whether the colleague had read the bill.

Mr. GARFIELD replied that he had.

Mr. SPAULDING was satisfied his colleague had not, because if so he would have seen that every man of the South is cut off from the benefits of the bill.

Mr. GARFIELD declined to be further interrupted by any one who impugned his word.

Mr. SPAULDING—I do.

Mr. GARFIELD resuming, said the Bill should be thoroughly considered and he would not vote for it under present circumstances. He did not believe the condition of the country was such as to require its immediate passage. There never was a time when there was so much prosperity as now.

Mr. JENCKES, of Rhode Island, (Union,) spoke of the long time this subject had been before the House. It should not be thrust aside by the mere declarations of a man who was not willing to understand it. The country demanded the passage of the bill. This was a time of apparent prosperity, but at least one hundred thousand men who wanted to take part in trade and the industrial pursuits, cannot now do so, they being bound in the chains of debt, from which the bill designs to relieve them.

Mr. BROWN, of Wisconsin, (Dem.,) agreed that a Bankrupt Bill should be passed, but at the same time, it ought to be fully considered. He pointed out several practical objections, which ought to be remedied.

THE GOLD SPECULATION BILL.

The morning hour having expired, the House took up the Senate bill to prohibit speculating transactions in coin and bullion.

Mr. HOOPER, of Massachusetts, (Union,) offered a substitute for the first section, and moved the previous question.

Mr. PENDLETON, of Ohio, (Dem.,) said a number of gentlemen on his side were not here, having supposed the consideration of the Tariff Bill would be continued this evening. He moved a call of the House.

The motion was disagreed to, 35 against 62.

Mr. MALLORY, of Kentucky, (Dem.,) moved, but the House refused, to adjourn—37 against 71.

Mr. PENDLETON, of Ohio, moved to go into Committee of the Whole on the Tariff Bill, when

Mr. STEVENS, of Pennsylvania, (Union,) at 9:10, moved to adjourn. This was carried, and the House adjourned.

The Great Central Fair.

PHILADELPHIA, Friday, June 3.

The opening ceremonies of the great Central Fair will take place in Logan-square on Tuesday next. President LINCOLN and the Governors of New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware, Mayor HENRY, of this city, and other dignitaries, are invited to be present. The exercises will be of the most impressive character.

THE HOLMAN TROUPE.—"Cinderella" is still the card par excellence, and Miss SALLIE HOLMAN the chief charm of the performance at the Broadway Academy of Music. In this young prima donna there is no abatement of the many claims which last season gained for her throughout the States so warm a recognition as Cinderella. Her conception and rendering of the rôle is very pleasing, and she has acquired a thorough mastery of the sources of expression. She has also the gift of protraying passion, and of so deep a kind that it imparts delicacy to her transports and such naturalness to her anguish. If her age is as much as eighteen, her appearance does not suggest more than fifteen, giving to her a very naïve and gracieuse person, and radiant complexion. To-night is the last of "Cinderella," and there is a matinee at 3 o'clock P. M.

EXCURSION.—The steamer Aurora, Capt. AS-BURY SMITH, leaves foot of Jay-street, for Peekskill and intermediate landings to-morrow morning, at eight o'clock.

Arrivals in the City.

Lord A. Cecil, Rifle Brigade; Baron Jansmond, Canada; Alderman Dakin, and party, of the Grand Trunk Railway; Capt. Cook, steamer Aurora; Lieuts. Berthwell and S. G. Redcrat, of R. R. M.'s Rifles; Count of Colbert and M. Salomi, of Paris, and Count J. et Colbert, French Legation, are at the Brevoort House.

Gen. Van Allen, of New-Hampshire, is at the Albemarle Hotel.

Commodore Sanders, Wm. C. Selden, Sam'l Selden, and Wm. C. Blackwell and wife, United States Navy; Hon. J. G. Scott, Missouri; Hon. J. R. Westbrook, Kingston; Hon. G. A. Bramlette, Westchester; and Hon. Ed. Dickinson, Amherst, Massachusetts, are at the Astor House.

Hon. E. P. Ross, Auburn; W. C. Mackey, W. S. Aury, and W. J. Colladay, Philadelphia, are at the St. Nicholas Hotel.

Dr. Rice and Capt. Bridgman, England; and J. Otis and Wm. Reynolds, California, are at the Metropolitan Hotel.

BROOKLYN NEWS.

FUNERAL OF A CLERGYMAN.—The funeral of Rev. FREDERICK S. WILBY took place from St. Ann's Church, yesterday. The deceased was formerly assistant pastor of this congregation. Subsequently he went to Philadelphia, and thence returned to New-York, where he was one of the ministers of Grace Church for a number of years. Failing health necessitated a voyage to Europe. He died in Florence, Italy, on the 20th of January last, and his remains were brought home for interment. The funeral services at the church were conducted by the pastor, Rev. Dr. SMITH, Rev. Dr. DYER, Rev. Dr. CHEEVER and Rev. Dr. COAN. The remains were conveyed to Greenwood Cemetery, accompanied by a large concourse of sympathizing friends and relatives. The pall-bearers were Rev. Dr. Price, Rev. Dr. Partridge, Rev. Mr. Tracy, Rev. Mr. Dunn, Rev. Mr. Smith, Rev. Mr. Eigenbrodt and Rev. Samuel Clark.

FIRE AT THE ATHENÆUM.—A fire was discovered in the basement of the Athenæum, corner of Clinton and Atlantic streets, about 7 o'clock yesterday morning, caused by carelessly throwing a quantity of live coals in a place used for depositing ashes. After smouldering for some time, the combustible woodwork caught fire, and was just beginning to burn when the janitor ascertained the fact, and with the aid of neighbors succeeded in extinguishing the fire.

INCREASE OF THE BROOKLYN POLICE FORCE.—At an adjourned meeting of the Common Council last evening, the committee on the subject reported in favor of increasing the police force of the City of Brooklyn by an addition of one hundred men, to take effect on Jan. 1, 1865. The whole force, with this addition, is not to exceed three hundred men. The resolution attached to the report was carried by a vote of 12 ayes to 3 nays. The additional amount of money required to meet this increase is $100,000 per year.

ENTERTAINMENT TO THE FOURTEENTH REGIMENT.—The Brooklyn Central Union Club gave a fine entertainment to the Fourteenth Regiment, on Thursday night, at the Mansion House. Every one of the returned veterans were present, and greatly enjoyed themselves. Addresses were made by Messrs. CHEEVER, E. D. GUNNISON, J. M. VAN COTT, Rev. Dr. FARLEY, and the Colonel of the regiment, E. B. FOWLER.

THE GOLDEN BITTERS.—We are not an advocate of stimulants of an alcoholic character; indeed, we deprecate this "daily toddy" idea—this "morning toddy" which we see offered in all sorts of shapes as a "preventive, invigorator, revitalizer, &c. As a rule, all artificial stimulants are dangerous remedies, and must be taken into the system as you would medicury or arsenic, in very small doses. But we have had an opportunity to try the now well-advertised article known as HUNZIKER'S Golden Bitters, and are frank to say where the system needs building up, where a stimulant is required to aid nature in restoring a lost appetite and infusing a vigorous action to the debilitated functions, we can recommend these bitters. HUNZIKER'S Golden Bitters are evidently intended to improve the debilitated human system rather than to tickle the palate, and are therefore a harmless and safe remedy to keep in the house.—New-York Weekly Day Book.

"Excellent Head," exclaimed Brown the other day, as he saw a distinguished-looking gentleman pass down the street. "I would give a thousand dollars for a head like that myself." "Not at all," objected his friend Jones, who was much wiser than his companion; "don't you see 'tis the Hat he wears, and not the head, that gives him so distinguished an appearance." Brown looked again, and the distinguished-looking gentleman, at the moment raising his hat to a lady, displayed on the inside of it the trade mark of KNOX, the hatter, of No. 212 Broadway, corner of Fulton-st.

A VOICE FROM TEXAS.

Condition of Affairs in the Lone Star State.

Vivid Sketch of the Beauties of Rebellion.

How the Southern People Were Betrayed Into Secession.

The Lies by which the Rebel Leaders Retain Power.

——, TEXAS, Tuesday, April 19, 1864.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

I was taking and reading your paper till since 1861, when our rebellion cut off all communication with the States. This left us in the most profound ignorance of what was going on there—not simply in the ignorance of a man shut up in prison, to whom nothing comes; but we have been subjected to the most steady and persevering misrepresentations. In all that time I have not seen a single TIMES, nor, with one single exception, any other reliable paper—any one not in the interest of the rebellion. We knew there were misrepresentations; but what was truth we did not know. Any attempt to find out the truth would have cost a man his life—in the cant phrase of the day, made him "look up a tree."

A few weeks ago the Federal troops came on our coast, and captured and drove away our troops. Just now we have received, through them, two New-York and one New-Orleans paper—the Inaugural Message of Gov. SHORT, of Iowa, the letter of President LINCOLN to the Albany Democratic Convention, and his Amnesty Proclamation. This is more reliable information than we have had during all the war before. Can you guess how we feel? No, you cannot. For you were never shut in a dark room for three years, and then had a little light (it seems a flood just now) let in upon you. You were never deprived of all food till your weakened body was about to perish, and then had suddenly thrust upon you a crust and a cup of water, which at the time seemed a full supply. You were never cut off from all sources of reliable information till thought, and hope, and wish, were well nigh dead, and then obtained, almost by stealth, a little trustworthy intelligence. Till you have experienced all this, you cannot tell how we feel. If you are ever in such a case, and then have to say so, (your eye have an abundance of light, and food, and knowledge, under penalty of "looking up a tree," you will understand the matter. Not before.

We are not yet taken. We have as yet no protection. We only hope we shall be conquered and protected. The United States troops are within about forty miles of us, and they seem a long time coming. The Confederate troops are dodging about new outside, and now between us and the Yankees. So we are still in the midst of rebeldom. But there is some light. We have some hope. Nay, we are in an agony of hope if you will allow the expression. Our "enemies," the Yankees, have brought some bread to our starving neighbors. We have had three papers six weeks old, and two pamphlets. We see the day break, we think, and we can hardly resist the impulse to use the same channel as our "enemies" to let out a little of our darkness. To tell the truth, we have become so unused to the pen, that it is difficult to say what we wish. (We think that is it. May be it is the consciousness that we write with a rope around our neck if detected.) If there is any interest to this letter it will be its darkness, not its light.

Perhaps there was never a people more bewitched, beguiled and befooled than we were when we drifted into this rebellion. We have been kept so to an amazing extent. Our editors, (most of them Northern renegades,) our preachers and stump-speakers, inflamed the people with falsehoods of rights violated, constitutions broken, laws disregarded on the one hand, and easy victories on the other; and it is astonishing how easily the pretended secession was made and the war began. President LINCOLN ought to have made the very first class of exceptions, in his Amnesty Proclamation, the editors, preachers and stump-speakers. They were and are more responsible for the beginning and continuance of the rebellion than all others. They led the people into it. They have kept them in it. True, the people's ignorance made it an easy matter; but that does not excuse their persevering misrepresentations. Statements like this (by one since an officer of high rank) were common: "I will give a good bond to drink all the blood shed in a war caused by secession." This is a specimen. And this class is one of the last who should have been pardoned, for they are all of them sinning yet. But let that pass.

I was speaking of the ease with which we drifted into this war. Not a few have found that it is not so easy to get out of as into such a difficulty. In fact, I think all admit, to themselves, at least, that if we were out of this, we would think a little before we went into another war. There are others who think we must fight it out, now we are in it; and some cling to it con amore.

In this Texas, we were recovering from the effects of the Mexican war and the demoralization caused by the troops stationed here afterward. We were becoming settled and industrious; schools, Sunday schools and churches were springing up everywhere. Civil law was taking the place of lynch committees. Trade was brisk. Taxes were next to nothing. We were, except our Slavery, having a steady and healthful growth. We were greatly encouraged. Our intercourse with the States and with the world was free and abundant.

Now where are we? The entire male population, except boys and old men, are in the war. The ground is left untilled. Manufactories are never had. Our herds of cattle and sheep, once our food, with our horses, all our wealth, are driven off by marauders, or lying dead on our prairies, breeding sickness amongst us. Civil law—we do not know what it means. Every man relies on his six-shooter, or lets his property go without complaint. Schools, preaching, churches, have all been abandoned. The taxes levied by statute would take the largest share of the property. There is not much attempt to collect them now. Providence has united with our "enemies" to complete the desolation. Such a drought as the State has not felt since it was a State, is upon us. Unless we have good Winter rains, we raise no crops. We have had no rains for seven months, and it is now full two months past the planting season. Everything is parched up. The winds, commonly pure and gentle sea breezes, are now almost hurricanes, and from every direction in turn; they cover us with dust and sand, and blight everything that might else grow. This is the cause of the death of our cattle. Hitherto, since the war, we have raised corn, and that, with beef, has been our food. We are now eating the remainder of our last year's corn, and in cases not a few, the beef that dies from starvation, with no present prospect we shall have even these long. To finish the climax, we are devouring each other. If any man wants anything he sees, he takes it without regard to the owner. The officers and soldiers lead the way in this, the people follow. The exceptions are only the few who prefer to maintain their moral integrity, rather than take their neighbors or save their own property. You will think we can hardly stand it much longer in this State, and so some of us think. But if you could see our papers, or hear some of our men talk (and believe them,) you would think we were "in the full tide of successful experiment."

During the war we have been invariably successful. We have beaten the United States armies in every battle everywhere. We have killed more men and taken more prisoners (according to the published reports) than there were inhabitants in the loyal States at the last census. We have taken, and burnt, Washington I don't know how many times. We have driven the Government to Philadelphia, New-York, and to Cincinnati, each in turn, and finally we took the President and Cabinet all prisoners. We have made successful invasions through the Western States, to and including Chicago. Gen. LEE, last Summer, took Gettysburgh, Chambersburgh, Harrisburgh, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington, all in a single week. The man came on here in person who went with the army the whole distance, and staid two days after it entered Washington. Don't smile at our geographical knowledge. Our most intelligent men believe all this. And those of us who doubted that an army could move so fast or far, were careful not to say it. England, France and Russia have recognized our independence, and promised us aid several times. Generally the intelligence was official, always certain. Our bonds—Confederate and State—were at a premium in Europe. Money was pressed upon our Government, all and more than it needed. Even in Wall-street our Confederate bonds were worth more than United States bonds. Our soldiers were well fed and clothed, and everywhere (except right here) contented and in the best courage. The slaves (except also here) were a unit, clinging to their masters, and resisting emancipation. When you caught any of them, they ran back as fast as they could, escape from your clutches; our paper currency was as good as gold all over the Confederacy, (except again right here.) Don't think I have exaggerated. This is the uniform, unbroken testimony of our papers, and preachers, and our stump speakers, (now scarcely any left.)

Add to this that the United States were just on the brink of ruin—their debt overwhelming—their currency worthless—the time of service of their soldiers out, and they could not be coaxed or forced into the ranks again—no draft could be enforced—their people very unanimous against the war—and the President only able to exist by the protection of body guards—all of which we are assured is true by the same veracious authority. Why then should we not be in good courage—why not finish up the work, and, in the cant phrase of the day, "gain our liberties?"

A few words as to our actual condition during the war. From having regular and reliable mails, we have none in one half of the State, and only get a letter or newspaper by chance conveyance. This, with verbal rumors, is our only source of information. We know literally nothing of the world outside of us. We have a rumor of trouble in Europe, but of its cause or condition we are ignorant. Till we saw these New-York papers, we knew nothing of the movements in Arkansas, or Louisiana, for the reconstruction of loyal State Governments, nor of the Emancipation movement in Delaware, Maryland, Missouri, etc. Such things are not told here. In fact we have learned more from these three papers, about affairs in the United States and abroad, than we have known before during the whole war. It took us more than two months last summer to find out that Vicksburgh was captured. Our papers stoutly denied it, even after the paroled soldiers came home. And to this hour we are told that no boat can pass up or down the river—that they are fired into and sunk. We are determined the river shall be of no benefit to you. Our currency is useless; it will buy nothing. And yet our papers and our patriots tell us, that to make any difference between a paper and a silver dollar, is a crime deserving of punishment or hanging. Public meetings are held, resolutions passed, and committees appointed to compel the passage of the currency at par. We have no manufactories, except one in the Penitentiary. Our clothing is, in good part, of skins, and apparently will be soon that which nature gave us. Till Brownsville was taken by the Yankees, clothing and provisions were introduced by that port, and we could get them at some price. This State and Arkansas were thus in part supplied. But this is all closed, and now we are, as above stated, eating the remainder of the last year's corn crop, and our dead and dying beeves. I have just seen a letter from a neighbor soldier, in which he says: "We have nothing but some corn bread, and beeves that often die when driving into camp, and we are nearly naked from clothing. You ask why I do not desert? I am watched like a thief." I have no doubt this is literally true. I know it is of a good share of the families. These are not exceptional cases, but general, in the army and among the people.

Look now at the following article from our principal State paper, under date of March 20. I send the slip lest you should think I had not copied it exactly. It is the leading editorial of the number, and the whole of it.

From the Daily Telegraph, 20th March.

OUR CONDITION IN TEXAS.

Every day shows an improved tone in the public mind. Every day our people seem to be growing more and more firm and fixed in their determination to make the war their private as well as public business. We hear that crops are mostly planted with this view, that preparations are being made in the army and among the people, with a view to our being independent of foreign supplies, whether of food, of clothing, or arms, or of munitions of war.

We believe we betray no secret, the publication of which will not benefit us, when we state that our military affairs are now, so far as supplies are concerned, in a better condition than ever before. We have some of the best cotton, not only for every soldier now in the ranks but for all that we shall require to aid to them. Our troops are well clad and furnished with camp supplies. We have an abundant surfeit of gunpowder, so much in fact that our storage for more can hardly be found. Gun caps are now on hand in millions, and manufactories are turning out many more. Accumulations of quartermaster's stores have been made at different points, in quantities sufficient for a long time ahead, and the most ample provision is being made for the future.

As of late, in addition to the operations in the Clothing and Equipage Bureau of which we made mention the other day, the organization of large companies with heavy capital is a feature of the times. The Brazos Manufacturing Company has over a million of dollars on its books. The Chappell Hill Company has a large amount. Other companies are equally well founded.

The distribution of cards by the State puts the risk of a lack of clothing out of the question. Everywhere the women are busy preparing not gaiy for Summer clothing, but in many cases getting the cloth made up for the next Winter.

If the war lasts two years longer, it will be the making of us. We shall not only develop the fact that we are self-supporting, but that we can support the heaviest of burdens at the same time.

It only needs to be added that these manufacturing companies exist only in name. That they have no machinery, and can't get any. And their capital is "on their books," if anywhere. It is certainly not in their treasury, nor expected to be there.

The very next number of the Telegraph, the only other one that I have seen, gravely announces that the Confederate army has whipped the Yankees all out of Alabama, Mississippi and Florida. That Gen. LEE is driving Gen. MEADE into Washington City, and will soon have the city itself. That in one month we shall have San Francisco and all California. That Secretary SEWARD is sick, and gone home to die of chagrin. That the President and Secretary CHASE are so down-spirited as to be really pitiable objects. That it is all the United States can do to keep our troops from overflowing the entire Free States. And that they have given up the idea and the attempt to conquer us. The paper is not at hand or I would send you the slip as above. Said I not truly, I would let out some of our darkness. I am sure if lying were a measure of success, we should be the most abundantly successful people in the world.

I am assured that a very large majority of our people, including the soldiers, would heartily welcome the Yankees to-day, and would show them they do if they were sure of protection. They wish them to come. It is the burden of their thoughts and their hopes. And yet they have so little chance for concert of action, and so fear the minority, they dare not express their wish and hope. I know that many of our men are now under arms and doing soldier's duty who wait and long and pray that they may be conquered speedily. They are almost out of patience that the troops on our coast do not come and take them. Hunger and nakedness and the robberies of the officers of the army are making a revolution almost as rapid as was that at the beginning of the war. President LINCOLN'S Amnesty Proclamation would be hailed by glad hearts were it seen and the people assured of protection at home. Probably not one in four hundred of the people have ever seen it or will see it till conquered. That is not one of the things our papers give us, or name even. They suppose to-day that subjugation means confiscation of property and the loss of personal liberty. Only this week I was told that when the Yankees come they will take away food from our tables, (not much to take,) try us for treason, and confiscate our property to pay the war debt. When I showed the proclamation to disprove it, it was replied, "Oh! that is a gull to get us back, and it will not be heeded afterward." So prejudiced are some of us, if we are not taken and protected, it will not be two months before we shall be gravely assured that the loyal people in Louisiana have lost everything they have, and are imprisoned or hung. This, if it gets out any way that there is a loyal people there, that fact will be concealed as long as possible. Still, ignorant and prejudiced, and fearful as we are, I repeat that I believe a large majority of the people in camp and at home wish we were conquered to-day. They are heartily tired of the war. Often and often they cry out, "Peace on any terms." I must stop. Yours, truly

The $300 Exemption.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

The argument, that by putting upon conscripts the procuring of substitutes, we gain the active exertions of a large number of deeply interested recruiters, is a fallacious one.

The theory is an attractive one; but, in practice, the whole work must be done by substitute brokers, or by the General and State Governments.

It was found in France that the brokers got most of the money, and gave a very poor class of recruits; and after trying the experiment thoroughly then, the policy was adopted of exacting exemption-money, for which the Government gave more complete exemption than when substitutes were brought. In the last case conscripts were held responsible for their substitutes; so that, except in rare cases, those able to pay exemption paid it to Government, instead of getting their own substitutes; and the Government applied the money to procuring old soldiers, paying somewhat in proportion to their prior length of service.

So far as we have tried the experiment here, the policy indicated is in the same direction. Abolish the exemption and you raise the price of substitutes or volunteers, by adding the element of panic and throwing the business of recruiting entirely into the hands of the brokers.

This eminently rascally class has grown very rich; next to "shoddy," they have fattened most upon the war, and cannot be a doubt that a great deal of the pressure for repealing the $300 clause comes from them. They know it will raise their price up to $500, and the greater part of the gain will be to them.

Of the conscripts who are able to pay, not one in a hundred will procure his own substitute. Its repeal will draw the line still more strongly than now between the rich and the poor.

No, let us either force rich and poor to go, allowing neither substitutes nor exemption fee, or let us have a moderate exemption fee, which will keep the price of substitutes within reasonable limits, by fixing a maximum.

With the increasing emigration, and by using the reserves of blacks, we can, by keeping steadily at work, get all the men we want for $300, in addition to the United States bounty. It only needs foresight and a steady system. Yours,

AN OLD RECRUITING COMMITTEE MAN.

PARTIAL COMPLETION OF LIGHT-DRAFT IRON-CLADS.

A visit to the iron-clad shipyards in the neighborhood of New-York, in which the last batch of light-draft vessels are building, shows that the Naubuc, Modoc and Cohoes would be ready for launching within five or six weeks. These vessels, although having an immense armor, will draw only six feet of water. They were contracted for at the rate of $265,000 each if built in six months, and $295,000 if built in nine months. They had hardly been commenced, however, when new and valuable improvements, suggested by the experience of our other vessels at Charleston, were introduced, and these necessarily threw the work backward a great deal. At that same time unknown to the public, which would now have been alloat and preparing rapidly for active service, some of the finishing touches of completion, fourteen are all planked, so that if their services were immediately required, night and day work could finish them in exceedingly short space of time. There is hardly a river or a lagoon of the South in which these vessels cannot move with ease and safety, while they can take these guns of a heavier calibre than were ever seen on rivers before. Their motive power is screw of sufficient magnitude to propel them at the rate of seven or eight miles an hour. Not being intended for ocean service their modeling upon the coast will necessarily have to be well considered and low. They are essentially harbor vessels. If the nineteen vessels of this class which are now building, could at this time be transported to the Mississippi there would be an end of the rebel gunboats. They possess nearly all the defensive power of the original monitor, and as much offensive power, their only weak point being below water-mark, and the rebels have proved recently that they can reach our ships in that region very effectively.

It is believed that Capt. PARKER and Mr. J. E. Deparmentt, both in Greenpoint, will be the first two commodores to launch there, the vessels of this class in this vicinity. Mr. J. M. Messrs's vessel, the Catawba, will soon afterward be docked off.

THE MOHONGO DOUBLE-ENDER.

This iron-built steamer, erecting at the yards of the Messrs. Secor, is being rapidly pushed forward toward completion. She is a double-ender, side-wheeled, and measures 250 feet in length. Mr. ROBERTS, chief superintendent to the Messrs SECOR, is losing no time in complying with the wishes of the Government, that she may be got ready as fast as possible for sea. He also states that she will have great speed. The Mohongo will carry a very heavy armament.

THE ERICSSON NEW IRON-CLAD MARGUAI.

The fifth new ironclad of the Ericsson invention has been launched from the yards of Messrs. ZENO ECOB & Co., Jersey City, and her turret is almost completed, after which her guns will be placed therein. The Mahonoc, is a twin ironclad of the Tecumseh, now doing duty with the squadron of Admiral FARRAGUT, and will be in every respect a fac simile of the Tecumseh and Manhattan Ericsson ironclads. Under the superintendence of Mr. GEORGE BIRKNOR, Jr., and through his exertions, she is expected soon to take her trial trip. She will then go into commission at the navy-yard, and afterwards join the before-mentioned squadron.

Two Naval Officers Dismissed.

The following very commendable order has been issued by the Secretary of the Navy, dismissing two officers from the service for cruelty to a seaman:

NAVY DEPARTMENT, May 9, 1864.

GENERAL ORDER No. 25.—A complaint having been recently made to the department by THOMAS THOMPSON, an ordinary seaman, serving on board the United States steamer Montauk, in the South Atlantic Blockading Squadron, that on the 9th of March last, while on duty, he was kicked and abused by Acting Master EDWARD JONES, the Commander of the squadron was directed to institute a thorough investigation of the alleged maltreatment.

The report of the investigation received by the department included a statement of Acting Assistant Surgeon W. H. HARRIS, of the Montauk, in these words:

"THOMAS THOMPSON, ordinary seaman, contracted orchitis on the 10th of March, and is still suffering from the effects of the above disease. Having been exposed to cold and wet on the previous day, I am of opinion the disease originated from the above exciting causes."

This report not appearing satisfactory to the Department, a renewed investigation was ordered, and the further report received shows that Acting Assistant Surgeon HARRIS, at the time of making the above statement, was fully aware of the cause to which ordinary seaman THOMPSON attributed his illness, and to which there was good reason to ascribe it. It appears that, "on being more closely questioned," Dr. HARRIS stated that he had "never known a case of chronic orchitis, such as THOMAS THOMPSON had, caused by cold and wet," and had "never read of a case of chronic orchitis being caused by cold and wet."

It being clear to the Department, from the facts developed by the investigation, that the disease of THOMPSON was owing to maltreatment and illegal punishment, and that the statement of the medical officer was given for the purpose of screening an offender, Acting Master EDWARD JONES and Acting Assistant Surgeon W. H. HARRIS are hereby dismissed from the navy.

Persons enlisted in the naval service may be assured that their complaints of maltreatment, properly made and forwarded, will receive due attention from the department, and that the laws enacted for their protection will be strictly, and, in such cases as this, summarily enforced.

GIDEON WELLES, Secretary of the Navy.

A New Arctic Expedition by C. F. Hall.

To the Public:

Capt. C. F. HALL—who, ten months ago, returned from a two years and four months' exploration of the Arctic region—intends to set sail on the 15th of June, for another and more thorough voyage of discovery. He has been engaged during the interim in preparing an account of his adventures, which will shortly be issued by Messrs. HARPER & BROTHERS. During his former voyage Capt. HALL lived among the Esquimaux, acquired their language, and satisfied himself, by actual and prolonged experiment, that he can live with these people in safety and health. He brought home with him a family of Esquimaux, who will return with him to assist in his future explorations. In short, Capt. HALL is prepared, as no other explorer has been before him, for making a thorough investigation of the important portions of Arctic land and water to which he proposes to devote himself.

This region holds still a part, and an important portion of the secret of the ill-fated Franklin expedition, which our countrymen hopes and confidently expects to lay bare. It is, moreover, of interest and value to our whaling and sealing interests; and the reports on the natural history of the unexplored territory which he will visit will possess, besides, great scientific value. These considerations, which have led him to devote the best years of his life to Arctic research, induce also those whose names are appended to this notice to ask their fellow-citizens to join them in procuring for this brave explorer such outfit as shall set him fairly on his way, and enable him to perform thoroughly the task he has set himself. Our countrymen have won an honorable fame by their courage and endurance in Arctic research. It is therefore not at that one who has already shown such perseverance, fortitude and ingenuity in his previous voyage as Capt. HALL has done, shall be permitted to leave our shores lacking anything which can further his laudable object.

The proposed exploration has enlisted the sympathies of our most prominent scientific men, especially geographers, as well as the help of enterprising whaling firms. Several important contributions have already been received towards Capt. HALL'S outfit. Mr. RUSHADY H. CHAPELL, of New-London, Connecticut, who is intimately connected with the well-known house of WILLIAMS & HAVENS, gives a free passage to the Arctic regions to him and his Esquimaux in one of his ships—the Monticello, E. A. CRAPNELL, of Hudson, N. Y., master, and carries for him, in addition, his boats and his entire outfit, free of charge. This noble and liberal act relieves the explorer of one of the heaviest items of his expense. Capt. HENRY ROBINSON, of Newburgh, contributed $1,100. Prof. BACHE offers to furnish some necessary scientific instruments. Mr. GERARD FANCHER, of this City, has given meteorological instruments to the amount of $100. Prof. R. S. NAWSON, M. D., of this City, offers to supply, in connection with other gentlemen of his profession, the medical stores needed by Capt. HALL for his voyage of three years.

It should be understood that Capt. HALL takes with him no sailing vessel; but on arriving at the scene of his labors will leave the ship which bears him there, and trust thereafter to his boat and sledges, and to the hospitality of the Esquimaux. He hopes to return in about three years.

In order to complete the outfit a sum of about $3,000 is yet required; and while it is Capt. HALL'S intention to sail at any rate, whether thoroughly fitted or not, it is hoped that our public-spirited citizens will not permit this intrepid explorer to depart from our City lacking anything which can help to preserve his life, or enable him to perfect his explorations in the inhospitable regions whither he is bound.

Subscriptions in money or donations in kind of supplies or goods for the expedition may be handed to any of the undersigned, who will see that they are properly applied in aid of this praiseworthy enterprise:

J. Carson Brevoort, Long Island Historical Rooms, Brooklyn, N. Y.; James W. Beekman, 2, W. Barr, No. 16 Wall-street; Henry Grinnell, Office Lowndes and Liverpool Insurance Company, No. 45 William-street; E. and G. W. Blunt, No. 179 Water-street; John Austen Stevens, Jr., Chamber of Commerce Rooms.

SINGULAR CHANGE OF ADULTERY.—In 1851, in Zanesville, O., one JOHN W. SCATES, butcher, was arrested and lodged in jail on a charge of larceny, the larceny alleged consisting in an unlawful appropriation of certain pigs. Shortly after his release from jail on this charge, fearing another arrest for some offence not known, SCATES left Zanesville early one morning and made his way to Cincinnati. He left in Zanesville his wife, CATHARINE, and children, without provision for their support. The wife heard from him, by letter, once after he left her, and that about a month after he had run away. Some two years or more after, having had an office of marriage held, she sought a divorce on the ground of desertion, but suspended proceedings, by advice of her lawyer, on learning that SCATES was dead, and so informed her intended new husband. A short time after, in the Spring of 1855, she was married to her present husband, Mr. WM. S. JONES, with whom she has lived since that time—the last three or four years in St. Paul. Her husband has held a respectable position in society, and her deportment has been such as to commend her to those with whom she became acquainted. Recently, her former husband, SCATES, made his appearance in this city, had interviews with Mr. JONES and with Mrs. JONES, and finally gave a complaint of adultery against JONES, before Justice McELRATH of the Police Court. An examination was had on the complaint, yesterday, before Justice McELRATH, and the complaint was dismissed and JONES discharged from arrest. On announcement of the decision, there was a word or two of emphatic approval from one or two of the persons present who had listened to the evidence in the case, while the looks of all showed their sympathy with the defendant. Mrs. JONES was present during the examination, sitting by the side of Mr. JONES, and at its close walked away with him. Mr. SCATES, the complaining witness, felt nettled during the arguments of the lawyers, and so remained at the close of the Justice's decision. His appearance would be apt to make an impression against him with a jury.—St. Paul Press, May 26.

DEATH OF LIEUT.-COL. GRAVES.—The last arrival from New-Orleans brings intelligence of the death, on the 19th inst., of Lieut.-Col. WILLIAM R. GRAVES, Jr., of the One Hundred and Seventy-third New-York Volunteers, from wounds received at the battle of Pleasant Hill, La., at the age of twenty-one. Entering the army as a private at the outbreak of the war, Col. GRAVES was promoted for his brave conduct at the battle of Roanoke Island. He passed through various battles and skirmishes—among others that of Cedar Mountain, at which he was captured, and taken to the Libby Prison at Richmond. After his exchange he continued in the service, and received especial mention for his courageous conduct in assisting, with his own hand, the sword of a Georgia Captain and the battle-flag of the regiment. The sword was presented to Col. GRAVES by the Commanding General, and he was promoted to a Lieutenant-Colonelcy. About a year since he left for the Department of the Gulf, passed with his regiment through the whole Louisiana campaign and that of the Red River, up to the time of the battle in which he received his death-wound. He was unusually well read in military law, and had been intrusted with the presidency of courts-martial for the trial of offenses punishable with death. He was brave, manly and honorable, and his assiduous attention to the comfort of the men under his command gave him a high place in their affections, and insured a cheerful alacrity in obedience.

THE CITY GOVERNMENT.

[OFFICIAL.]

BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

STATED SESSION—WEDNESDAY, JUNE 1, 1864.

Present—John T. Hardy, Esq., President. Aldermen Fox, McCool, Shannon, Chipp, Hall-night, Ryers, Jeremiah, Hardy, Masterson, Ottiwell, Lang.

On motion, the minutes of the last meeting were dispensed with.

PETITIONS.

By Alderman Ryers—

Bill of Charles Kerk for services distributing reports.

Which was laid over.

By Alderman Long—

Resolved, That sunken lots on the north and south side Eighty-ninth and Ninetieth streets, between the Third and Fourth avenues, be filled in under the direction of the Street Commissioner.

Which was referred to Committee on Public Health.

By Alderman Ryers—

Whereas, We believe that the indecent haste with which the Legislature passed on the Tax-levy for the year has resulted in errors believed to be fatal to the whole law, more especially that part of it affecting the right and power of the Common Council to direct the cleaning of the streets by contract; therefore be it

Resolved, That the City Inspector be and he is hereby directed to advertise for proposals for cleaning the streets, avenues, lanes and alleys, and all the gutters, wharves, piers and heads of slips to be thoroughly swept and cleaned, and to remove immediately therefrom all dirt, manure, ashes, garbage and rubbish, for a term not exceeding five years; and be it further

Resolved, That the Counsel to the Corporation, in connection with the City Inspector, be and he is hereby directed to prepare the necessary proposals and specifications for said contract.

Which was adopted.

By Alderman Farley—

Resolved, That the Comptroller be and he is hereby authorized and directed to advertise for a lot of ground for the use of Engine Company number Ten, to be within the following boundaries: Third and Fourth avenues, Eightieth and Eighty-fourth streets.

Which was referred to Committee on Fire Department.

REPORTS.

The Committee on Streets presented a report to pave Irving-place, from Fourteenth to Fifteenth streets, with Belgian pavement.

Which was laid over.

The Committee on Streets presented a report to pave Twelfth-street, between the Fifth and Sixth avenues, with Belgian pavement.

Which was laid over.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A communication was received from the Street Commissioner, in reply to a resolution of inquiry, relative to the Battery enlargement.

Secretary,
CHARLES H. SWORDS, Esq.
This Company is formed for the purpose of purchasing and working 2,300½ feet on the "Ground Hog," Gregory No. 1, Simmons, Osmond, and other celebrated developed gold bearing lodes, in the best mining district of Colorado. Also the Henderson Mill, with twelve (12) stamps, now running and in excellent order.
The Company has the refusal of this property, and will purchase the same for $200,000 in cash, and 20,000 shares of stock at par.
The Capital Stock of the Company will be $1,000,000.
Whole number of Shares, 100,000. Par, $10.
Fifty thousand shares of the stock will be sold at par only. A large portion of this has been taken by private subscription. Books will be opened on Wednesday, June 8, at No. 40 Broad-st., where the remainder of the 50,000 shares can be subscribed for by applying to the Treasurer of the Company, between the hours of 10 A. M. and 2 P. M.
It is needless to speak of the immense advantage of having a mill and machinery on the spot already working.
With the facilities the Company already has, immediate returns may be looked for. Twelve (12) men can mine fifteen (15) tons of ore per day, and six hundred and ninety (690) men can be worked to advantage, or thirty (30) men to each hundred feet.
It is proposed to push the work with the utmost energy, and the Directors have every confidence that their efforts will produce satisfactory and immediate results. Copies of the Prospectus can be obtained at the office of the Company.

PROPOSALS FOR
VOLUNTEER SOLDIERS' FAMILY AID FUND BONDS, NO. 2.
Sealed proposals will be received at the Comptroller's Office until Saturday, the 11th of June, 1864, at 2 o'clock P. M., when the same will be publicly opened, for the purchase of the whole or any part of the sum of Five Hundred Thousand Dollars of the "Volunteer Soldiers' Family Aid Fund Bonds, No. 2," authorized by an ordinance of the Corporation, passed May 20, 1864, and an act of the Legislature of the State of New-York, passed March 9, 1864.
The said bonds will bear interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, on the first day of May and November in each year, and the principal will be redeemed November 1, 1873.
The proposals will state the amount of bonds desired, and the price per centum for which they are offered, and the persons whose proposals are accepted will thereupon be required to deposit with the Chamberlain of the City (at the Broadway Bank) the sums awarded to them respectively.
On presenting to the Comptroller the receipts of the Chamberlain for such deposits, the parties will be entitled to receive bonds for equal amounts of the par value thereof, bearing interest from the dates of payments.
Each proposition should be sealed and indorsed "Proposals for Volunteer Soldiers' Family Aid Fund Bonds, No. 2," and inclosed in a second envelope, addressed to the Comptroller.
The right is reserved to reject any or all of the bids if the interests of the corporation require it.
